Run Out of Gas

2 Superforts Fail Reach Washington

By FRED SCHERFF
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(BUP)—Two of the B-29's on the flight from Japan will be forced to land at Detroit for lack of gasoline, the war department announced today. The third plane will try to make Washington non-stop as planned. The war department said the lack of gasoline was caused by headwinds which the planes have been bucking for the past five hours.

The planes which will land are those piloted by Lt.-Gen. Barney Giles and Brig.-Gen. Emmett O'Donnell. Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay's plane will attempt to reach Washington.

Lemay's plane is due at Detroit at 4 p.m., MDT, and will be over Pittsburgh at 5 p.m., MDT, Air Corps officers estimated.

Lemay's plane now is expected to arrive here at 6 p.m., MDT,

The three B-29 Superforts of the USAAF, attempting to establish a new non-stop flight record from Japan to Washington, D.C., roared over Edmonton at 10:10 a.m. Wednesday. The bombers were flying at 20,000 feet. Because of their great height and heavy clouds the planes were not visible from the ground.

Conditions Rapped

Seedbed for Delinquency Is Seen in Poor Housing

"Thousands of people living in this city of Edmonton are living under housing conditions that you and I wouldn't think of living under for ten minutes, and this is the seedbed for juvenile delinquency," the Very Rev. Dean A. M. Trendell of All Saints' Cathedral, stated in speaking on juvenile delinquency in an address Tuesday to members of the Gyro Club at their noon luncheon in the Macdonald hotel. Dean Trendell, in addition to his church duties, is a juvenile court judge.

Dean Trendell cited as a metaphor applying to juvenile delinquency the case of physicians who first observed the symptoms of an illness and then determined the cause before prescribing curative measures. Bad housing created bad atmosphere and bad atmosphere led to the development of negative impulses in children.

THE REV. DEAN A. M. TRENDELL

Although poor and inadequate housing conditions were not the sole cause of juvenile delinquency they were a chief contributing factor, Dean Trendell continued.

LACK RESPONSIBILITY

There were many parents lacking in any sense of parental responsibility even where housing conditions did not enter into the picture, and without the wisdom of proper, interested parental guidance children were left to the con-

All Operators of Lotteries To Be Prosecuted by Govt.

As of today, Wednesday, Sept. 19, persons or organizations starting lotteries or raffles will be prosecuted by law enforcement officers of the Alberta attorney-general's department. Lotteries being conducted previous to this date will be permitted to wind up but this must be done before December 31 of this year.

Premier Ernest Manning made the announcement Wednesday setting down the government's policy toward lotteries after conferences with counsel of the attorney general's department staff and others concerned.

The premier said that the provincial government had been placed in a "most difficult position."

Impose Curfew On Canadians In Dutch City

By WILLIAM BOSS

UTRECHT, Holland, Sept. 19.—(CP)—A strict curfew for all members of the Canadian army quartered here has been ordered by military authorities following a Sunday night row between soldiers and civilians over what Burgomaster Tir Pilkwijk described as the "girl question."

The town, now being patrolled by increased Provost Corps members, has been a potential sore spot for some weeks, although relations elsewhere the Dutch and Canadians have been good.

The clash, which climaxed a period of ill-feeling over civilian resentment against the Canadian's ability to entertain Dutch girls in military recreation centres, with the result that the girls ignore

Pioneer Rancher Dies at 90 Years

LETHBRIDGE, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Herbert M. Hatfield, 90, pioneer stockman of the Pincher Creek district, died last night. The 7,720-acre Hatfield ranch on the Waterton river, operated by its owner 56 years, is believed to be a record in point of continuous ownership in the west.

Born in Herefordire, Kent, England, he came to the Pincher Creek district in 1886 and was a partner of the late Lionel (Lord) Brook, a notable character of the Waterton country in the Butte ranch. In 1903 they dissolved partnership. Mr. Hatfield taking up his present ranch on the Waterton. He had operated it since.

Another List of Jap Criminals Being Prepared

MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Tokyo, Sept. 19.—As occupation forces continued to round up the last few of the listed war criminals not yet accounted for, General MacArthur today closed another Tokyo newspaper for failure to observe his censorship orders, and announced that a second and longer list of Japanese wanted for interrogation was being prepared and would be issued shortly.

All but five of the men listed on the two first lists of 47 names are now under arrest or have committed suicide. Three were bagged yesterday, among them being Lt. Edson Residents Seeking "Holiday"

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—W. F. Kuhl, Social Credit member for the Alberta constituency of Jasper-Edson, had this to say in the Commons yesterday about the government plan to provide full employment:

"If all we want out of this life is full employment and a job, why did we ever dispose of Adolf Hitler who was the greatest provider of work the world has ever seen. He could create more jobs in one day than the prime minister of this country could create in a lifetime.

"Not only did he put all Germany to work, first; he put all Europe to work and eventually put the whole world to work.

"I say that at least as far as my constituents are concerned, they are looking for a holiday. Some of them have worked for 10 years and have not had a holiday yet. I should like to suggest, as an antidote to the phrase 'full employment' the slogan 'full enjoyment'."

CCF Will Not Run In Civic Election

$1.25 Minimum to Continue At Least for Present Year

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon, officially announcing that Canada would offer wheat for export at $1.55 basis No. 1 Northern at the head-of-the-lakes, said today in the Commons the government would undertake "that in the five-year period ending July 31, 1950, producers will receive not less than $1 per bushel, basis No. 1 Northern in store Fort William, Port Arthur or Vancouver on the authorized deliveries for each crop year."

The initial payment, said Mr. MacKinnon, would continue at $1.25 at least for the present crop year.

"By providing a long-term floor price of not less than $1 the government will protect producers against the consequences of any sharp reversal in the world wheat position during the next five years," he said.

LONG-RUN STABILITY

The government, in adopting this policy of a maximum price for overseas shipments for the present and a floor price for five years, was asking the producers, in their own interest, to forego exceptional short-run advantages in favor of a long-run stability of income.

General disruption and bad weather in the war areas, crop failures in Australia and North Africa and a small crop in Argentina had left Canada and United States the only countries having substantial export surpluses of wheat at the time a pent-up demand had been released in the liberated areas.

Under such conditions Canadian wheat might command a price higher than $1.55 but the importing countries, nearly all Allies, were buying because of necessity and to a large extent on credits. They would be compelled to meet through larger credits or sacrifices of other food and rehabilitation supplies whatever higher price was demanded for Canadian wheat.

IN CANADA'S INTEREST

"It is in the interest of Canada," said Mr. MacKinnon, "and of Canadian wheat growers that the importing countries should continue to obtain Canadian wheat at prices not in excess of those prevailing at the end of hostilities."

It was for that reason that the

Caretaker Foils Robbery Attempt

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 19.—(CP)—Two masked men, one armed with a sub machine-gun, and the other a revolver, failed today in an attempt to rob a branch of the Provincial Bank here.

The hold-up plan was thwarted by Richard Farron, bank caretaker. The men entered the building by a coal chute before any of the staff had arrived for work.

Farron was ordered by the men to allow bank employees to enter as they arrived. Instead, when the first employee, Mary Piette, arrived, Farron went to the door, pushed her back into the street, and then ran down the street himself.

The two masked men then ran from the bank, and fled in an automobile they had parked nearby.

Police believe the two intended to force employees to open the vault.

Talked With Leaders—Served With Troops

Experiences on Battle Fronts of Europe Recounted by Fighting Edmonton Chaplain

By JACK DeLONG

Pope Pius considered Winston Churchill ". . . one of the greatest men in the world, one of the finest statesmen who ever lived and a great general . . ." he told an Edmontonian, Maj. A. Claude Laboissiere, OFM, superior of the Franciscan Friary at North Edmonton during one of the rare personal audiences granted a Roman Catholic clergyman in Vatican City during the war.

Back at his old post as head of the North Edmonton Catholic institution, that includes St. Anthony's College, the former Roman Catholic padre of the famed Royal 22nd Bn. (the Van Doos) of Montreal, recounted many of the highlights of his long period of service with the armed services, at the friary.

Plump with thinning hair the padre's eyes sparkle with the joviality characteristic of the true Hibernian.

Like many others, both Catholic and Protestant, who exchanged the robes of religious office for a khaki uniform, Maj. Laboissiere was a real front line chaplain.

SIX YEARS IN FORCES

Altogether he served nearly six years in the Canadian forces and at the last was senior Roman Catholic chaplain in charge of all reinforcements and hospitals on the Mediterranean and Adriatic fronts.

Previously he had in turn served as padre at Montreal and Valcartier camps, the Canadian Forestry Corps overseas, the British Eighth Army, the Canadian Corps and the Free French Air Force in Algeria.

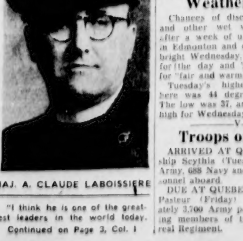

It was while serving with the Royal 22nd Regiment in the fierce fighting for San Nicola near Ortona that he was severely wounded by shrapnel in the right knee and left thigh.

SUFFERED AMNESIA

Previous to that he was struck on the head by a piece of falling marble while going through streets of an Italian city during a heavy bombardment. For a time after he suffered from recurring spells of amnesia.

His audience with His Holiness, an honor prized above all else by those of the Roman Catholic faith, followed closely the meeting between Prime Minister Churchill and the pope.

"I asked the pope what he thought of Churchill and without hesitation the Holy Father replied,

MAJ. A. CLAUDE LABOISSIERE

"I think he is one of the greatest leaders in the world today."

This is the story of one of Edmonton's fighting padres, a chaplain courageous who was wounded in the battle of Ortona. It's the story of an Edmonton priest who talked with the supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church, with the King and Queen and others of the world's great. It is also the story of a simple, brave man, who shared the miseries and heartaches of the ordinary soldier, the plain Canadian boy who bore the brunt of war's brutal thrusts. And the padre has returned to the quiet of an Edmonton monastery deploring racial and religious divisions that had no place in the front line; where Catholic, Protestant and Jew called on the same God for deliverance from the fires of the modern hell of war.—EDITOR.

Draw Up Set of Alternatives

Retailers to Propose Compromise Plan For Present Meat Rationing in Canada

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Government officials answered questions about meat rationing during a three-hour meeting today with a Canadian Retailers' Association delegation which first demanded immediate suspension of the rationing and later indicated to reporters it would be prepared to suggest a compromise plan.

The delegates are meeting again privately this afternoon. When it is understood they will draw up alternative alternatives which may include suggestions of voluntary customer rationing by the butchers themselves, requisitioning at the source by government agencies or a modified version of rationing which would apply only to prime meats.

It was understood that Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Finance Minister Ilsley, who attended the meeting for about an hour, agreed

Large Alberta Area Under PFAA

Approximately 25 per cent. of Alberta's cultivated acreage is likely to come under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act this year and the Alberta government has asked the Dominion to send inspectors into 827 of the province's 1,200 townships to investigate requests for bonuses.

Under the PFAA each year farmers apply to the municipality or improvement district for crop bonuses when the yield is less than five or eight bushels per acre, respectively.

The municipality and improvement district administrators then report to the minister of municipal affairs the townships that warrant inspection.

It is expected that Dominion inspectors will be in the field shortly.

Retailers Asking For Compromise On Meat Ration

with the delegation that there was a seasonal glut of livestock on the market which might continue for another two months.

SHORT ON EXPORTS

However, it was learned that government officials told the retailers that Canada still was short 40,000,000 pounds of beef and a similar, if not larger, amount of bacon in her commitments for overseas. These shipments must be made before the end of this year.

Emerging from the conference room as the meeting broke up for luncheon, George Hougham of Toronto, Dominion secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, told reporters that the morning session had been devoted principally to obtaining information from Prices Board officials and that the delegates would meet privately to devise some recommendations.

He said the delegation had tabled a resolution calling for immediate suspension of meat rationing and substitution of an alternative method of meeting Canada's overseas commitments, but there was no discussion on the document.

"AMIABLE" MEETING

K. W. Taylor, deputy chairman of the Prices Board for food, who presided at the conference, described the meeting as "amiable" and "very frank and exchange of views." He and other board officials answered questions from the delegates and gave a break-down of Canada's overseas commitments for the remainder of the year.

Other government officials at the meeting included J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Canadian Meat Board, which handles the purchase of meat for overseas shipment, L. B. Pearsall, meat board manager, and M. W. McCutcheon, a deputy chairman of the Prices Board.

The conference, held in the East Block of the Parliament Buildings, was under upon by the government following domination-wide protests since the inception of the new meat rationing system a week ago Monday.

The Retailers' Association released its resolution calling for suspension of rationing shortly before going into the meeting.

The association released the resolution to the press shortly before going into the conference room in the East Block of the Parliament buildings.

The resolution did not say how an alternative method for making Canada's contribution of meat overseas should operate.

SURPLUS AVAILABLE

It said that the delegation, representing meat dealers from all parts of Canada, was "in entire sympathy" with the objective of the recent production of meat rationing but added that information available to the Retail Meat Dealers' Association was a large surplus of cattle which could not be absorbed by existing agencies of processing and distribution.

This surplus, co-inciding with re-introduction of meat rationing, which would tend to aggravate the situation rather than relieve it.

The retail delegation, numbering 28 to 30, met in closed conference with K. W. Taylor, deputy chairman of the prices board for food, and H. I. Ross, rationing administrator.

The question of an open meeting came up in parliament last night. Finance Minister Ilsley told the house it was decided more progress could be made if the meeting were held in camera.

The retailers' delegation was headed by George Hougham, association secretary, who already has indicated he considered the meeting of enough importance to warrant cabinet representation, particularly the attendance of Finance Minister Ilsley under whose department the Prices Board operates, and Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Both attended the conference.

Before going into the conference Mr. Hougham said his delegation would confine itself during the morning session of the one-day meeting to matters of policy.

WANT INFORMATION

"We are interested in hearing the government's story of the necessity for this policy of meat rationing", he said. "In the light of information they give us we will be better able to discuss the mechanics of meat rationing".

He said the delegation had been given a number of figures from various sources "about the alleged glut of cattle on the market at this time and some of our people state that because of the glut the re-introduction of meat rationing will introduce wastage instead of conservation".

"Mr. Gardiner will be asked some very pertinent questions", Mr. Houghton said.

"We are very willing to admit there are some facts that we don't know and we are hoping the ministers will be able to supply the facts".

CALGARY, Sept. 19.—(CP)—An airman stationed at the repair depot, RCAF, Sgt. S. E. Ley, was fatally injured shortly before 5 p.m. yesterday, when the Air Force truck in which he was riding overturned. His wife lives in Calgary. No other vehicles were involved in the accident. The driver and three other passengers who were riding with Ley on the back of the open truck escaped without injuries. LAC. Two of Planes On Record Trip Forced to Land two hours behind the original schedule.

The silvery sky giants left Japan at 7 p.m. MDT, Tuesday. They reached Whitehorse, Yukon, the halfway mark, in the early morning.

From Whitehorse, they headed for the vicinity of Duluth, Minn., and then planned to roar down the home stretch to Washington via Hayward and Green Bay, Wis., Lansing, Mich. and Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

26-HOUR FLIGHT

Lt.-Gen. Barney Giles, deputy chief of U.S. Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific, who was aboard the first plane, radioed the army at Nome that the flight expected to arrive in Washington at 4 p.m. MDT—making an elapsed time of 26 hours since the takeoff from Japan.

"Can see nothing here that will stop us" Giles' message said. "May have to squeeze out a couple of gas cells to make it. All ships taking on 10,000 gallons experiencing no trouble."

The flight, moving along at 20,000 feet, met unpredicted headwinds on the first 1,000 miles of the journey but Giles said the weatherman "changed it to tailwinds when told he would be thrown overboard unless he did something about it."

PASSES OVER HOME

Giles also asked army officials to notify Mrs. Clyde A. Smith of Fairbanks that her husband, a captain and a member of the crew, was passing over her home but was "sorry he can't drop in." Mrs. Smith was "Miss Fairbanks" in 1941.

The refuge from the takeoff point—Muratani airfield on Hokkaido, northernmost of the Japanese main islands—to the Nome-Fairbanks-Yukon point followed by the planes. An alternate southern route, which would have stretched it to 5,782 miles, had been prepared in case bad weather was met.

The longest non-stop flight now on record—6,235 miles—was made by three Russian airmen from Moscow to San Jacinto, Calif., in July of 1937.

COMMAND PLANES

The B-29's left Japanese soil within 19 minutes of each other beginning at 4:01 p.m. yesterday. Aboard and in command of the lead plane was Lt. Gen. Giles. The second was in command of Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, chief of staff of the 20th air force and the third under Brig. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, commander of the 20th's 73rd bombing wing.

Their flight crews were composed of veterans of the B-29 campaign against the Japanese homeland who are eligible either for discharge or extended furloughs at home. Each plane carried a crew of 12 to permit rotation during the long trip.

After swinging down from Alaska and across the Canadian Rockies, the three planes will cross into the United States in the vicinity of Duluth, Minn., and head for Washington by way of Hayward and Green Bay, Wis., Lansing, Mich., and Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

IRONICAL TOUCH

The war department said the Muratani airfield, near Hokkaido's capital city of Sapporo, was chosen for the takeoff because it is one of the few in Japan which has the long, concrete runways necessary for B-29 takeoffs.

Ironically, the field reportedly was built by the Japanese to accommodate the big four-engined bombers that they planned to send on suicide missions against American cities. The big American ships are following virtually the same course that would have been taken by the Japanese suicide pilots if their plans had materialized.

Another List of Jap Criminals Being Prepared

Allied descriptions. He was picked up by men of the U. S. Intelligence Corps.

MORE TO RESIGN

It is reported that several new resignations from Premier Higashi Kuni's cabinet are imminent. Well informed Japanese are the sources of this report, and it is reported that the resignations will include Vice-Premier Prince Fuminaro Konoye. An internal battle between "the reactionaries and those supporting the premier's desire to make democratic reforms" is the reason, according to these sources, but Allied control officers are looking deeper and believe that it is another form of face-saving.

It is believed that some members of the present cabinet may be on the new lists being prepared by the Intelligence Corps.

Brig.-Gen. Elliott Thorpe, chief of American counter-intelligence, said the new list of Japanese wanted for questioning will be much larger than the original one of 47 which began with Hideki Tojo and ranged down through his cabinet.

SEEK TORTURERS

The next list is expected to bulge with names of Japanese wanted for interrogation concerning the tortures of Allied prisoners in Nipponese war camps, where mistreatment was heaped alike on generals and privates in the ranks.

The English language Tokyo newspaper, The Nippon Times, was the publication ordered to close down today. The offence charged was the publication of an editorial which had not been submitted for approval and passed by the American censors.

Only twelve hours before the influential Japanese language Asahi had been suspended for publication of articles derogative to the American army and liable to cause disaffection and trouble among the civilian population.

NO COLORED NEWS

The twin suspensions clearly showed that General MacArthur was determined to prevent the Japanese press from printing colored news that would tend either to incite the Japanese against occupation troops or to shift some of the blame for the Pacific war.

Asahi had called the American use of the atomic bomb a violation of international law and cast dead doubt on the authenticity of an American report of Japanese atrocities.

LEGALIZE ORDERS

The Japanese government, meantime, moved to give legal effect to General MacArthur's various directives to Japan. The official Domei Agency reported that the government had decided to promulgate an Extraordinary Imperial Decree automatically legalizing all measures taken by the government at General MacArthur's orders.

Domei said a draft of the decree probably would be submitted to the Privy Council tomorrow for approval.

Gen. Kenji Doihara, who succeeded Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama as commander of the Japanese First Army, paid an official call on Lt.-Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the American Eighth Army.

Doihara told Eichelberger his staff would bend every effort to facilitate the Eighth Army's occupation task and would co-operate to the fullest extent.

Eichelberger said the Japanese general appeared courteous and co-operative.

CONTINUES IN POST

Sugiyama committed suicide Sept. 9. Doihara will continue in the former post of Chief of the Japanese Far Eastern Army concurrently with the new assignment.

The Japanese cabinet approved a Communications Board plan to put all-wave radios on the market and to encourage their sale. During the war, the public was forbidden to use all-wave radios to listen to foreign broadcasts.

Army Paper Protests Repatriation Policy

By WILLIAM BOSS

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 19.—(CP)—In a two-column front page editorial, the Amsterdam edition of the Maple Leaf, Canadian Army newspaper, today took issue with the army's repatriation policy.

The editorial, confined to criticism of the procedure governing selection of personnel for repatriation, was based on investigation of the repatriation stream from Nijmegen, Holland to No. 8 repatriation depot, England.

The editorial asked why National Resources Mobilization Act personnel who hadn't left the United Kingdom for Europe by VE-Day now were returning home with the 1st Division.

SOME SENT OVERSEAS

(NRMA personnel originally were drafted for home service or service in areas adjacent to Canada, but some were sent overseas starting last Winter to maintain the flow of reinforcements to the army).

Of four NRMA men investigated at random by the Maple Leaf, the paper said three were said still not to have volunteered for overseas service although admittedly with a point score of more than 50.

It added that 31 per cent of a draft from the Saskatoon Light Infantry, support battalion of the 1st Division, consisted of NRMA personnel.

The article added:

SAID "NOT FUNNY"

"This sort of business isn't funny. Men who volunteered to come overseas, who either went into action as volunteers or did their best as volunteers to see that the fighting men were equipped with the necessaries, deserve better treatment. This is an appeal on behalf of the volunteers who made the Canadian Army an army of which to be proud. All that's wanted is justice."

The editorial was initialled J.D.M. These correspond to the initials of managing editor, Maj. J. Douglas Macfarlane of Toronto.

Officers at headquarters of the Canadian forces in the Netherlands, who are responsible for repatriation and demobilization arrangements, said they had not seen the article and withheld comment.

Invents Calculator For Meat Rationing

CALGARY, Sept. 19.—(CP)—E. S. Mayhood, Calgary, an accountant with a chain store firm, has heard the prayer of Canadian butchers and answered it.

He has invented and copyrighted a simple device which shows instantly the exact coupon and token value of any piece of meat placed on a butcher's scales.

The device is a strip of paper which is fastened around the drum of the scale. The strip is divided into five columns, one for each meat "group." When a cut of meat is put on the scale, the pointer swings and when it stops it shows, in addition to the exact weight and price the ration coupon value.

The old way, which is driving the country's butchers to threats of strike, was to determine the exact weight from the scale, and then look up the coupon value on a chart provided by the government.

All the meat counters in the chain stores by which he is employed are now equipped with Mayhood's indicator and other Calgary butchers are taking them up as fast as they can be printed. Mr. Mayhood intends to market them all over Canada.

Supposedly Disbanded

Black Dragon Members Still Meet Chief "As Individuals"

By AL DOPKING

TOKYO, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The supposedly disbanded Black Dragon Society, long a sinister and powerful Japanese political organization, still maintains its headquarters here where former members come to talk to their chief "as individuals."

This was learned today from Yoshia Kuzuu, the society's white-bearded chief secretary, who talks with seeming frankness but evades questions which might incriminate the society or disclose names of its members to American occupation forces.

The 71-year-old, straight-faced Kuzuu told me that all records and documents of his society were destroyed in the May 25, 1945, Superfort firebomb raid.

While he admitted maintaining what had been the Black Dragon headquarters and meeting "individually" with former members, he contended that this "has nothing to do with political things."

Smiling mildly at the question Kuzuu told me through an interpreter that "I haven't seen or heard of an underground movement" in Japan today.

Impose Curfew On Canadians In Dutch City

civilian men, developed Sunday night.

RETALIATE ASSAULTS

The burgomaster said that between 300 and 400 Canadian soldiers spread through the streets and started assaulting civilians in retaliation for sporadic attacks by civilian men against Canadian soldiers accompanying Dutch girls.

Civil police were withdrawn on instructions from the burgomaster, who said he left the matter of restoring order to military police who made a number of arrests.

The town at first was made out of bounds to all troops and then the curfew was established between 9:30 p.m. and dawn. It was applicable to all ranks.

HOLD UP DISPATCHES

Canadian military authorities have made no comment on the disturbance. A dispatch rider, carrying news of the clash to a telegraph station, was halted by provost corps men who returned him under escort to his headquarters.

The Sunday night trouble had been preceded by "minor incidents" which had become increasingly frequent. Previous reports told of civilian groups attacking soldiers escorting Dutch girls, with retaliatory fights resulting.

some more" until he found himself burying the body.

The little girl was last seen alive late in the afternoon of Sept. 11. Six days later the body was recovered from the grave after some of the most intensive and widespread searching in the history of Vancouver.

An autopsy showed Dianne's death was due to skull fracture. Police are holding a blood-stained rock as well as part of a sharp instrument, something like an ice pick, found imbedded in the girl's chest.

An inquest into the girl's death has been set for Friday.

Crown prosecutor Gordon Scott will talk this afternoon with the boy, being held in a juvenile detention home. Mr. Scott said he will then decide on what action he will take.

The boy passed into grade eight last June without writing examinations.

Guarantee $1 Wheat Price For 5 Years

government passed an order-in-council instructing the Canadian wheat board to fix the export price at $1.55.

AGGRAVATE PROBLEM

Any further increase in wheat prices now would aggravate the problems of economic and political readjustment of the liberated areas to Canada's detriment in future trade with those areas", he said. "There is a moral obligation not to take advantage of our recent allies in their time of compelling need.

"Higher wheat prices would encourage the importing countries in a hurried return to wheat production and pre-war wheat policies very directly to the detriment of the wheat exporting countries, particularly Canada. Moreover, producting in a number of exporting countries would be unduly encouraged."

While the minister's statement left the initial price paid to growers at $1.25, the price which has been paid for the last two years, the $1.55 export price represents an increase of nine cents a bushel over the price Britain up to Aug. 1 and this increase will help swell the returns the growers will receive on participation certificates.

CERTIFICATES GIVEN

Participation certificates are given to farmers by the Wheat Board when wheat is delivered. When the wheat of any crop year is all sold and the profits figured, the grower is entitled to share in the profits in proportion to the amount of wheat he delivered.

P. E. Wright (CCF—Melfort) asked if the statement implied that the wheat board would remain in operation until 1950.

Mr. MacKinnon said members could deduce what they wished from the statement. There was no reason why the duration of the wheat board. The government believed the board would remain in operation indefinitely.

Mark Senn (PC—Baldimand) asked if deliveries would be governed by quotas during the war.

Mr. MacKinnon said no reference was made to deliveries.

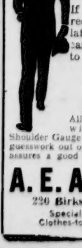

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, asked if a day would be set aside so members could discuss the wheat policy.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said there would be opportunity to discuss the matter without setting aside of any special day.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—A total of 13,611 men and women came up from the United States to serve with Canadian forces—more than 60 per cent of them with the RCAF—in the second great war, a compilation by the three services showed yesterday.

this method for war charities. While the section prohibiting lotteries is a federal statute its enforcement has been the responsibility of the provincial attorney-general's department.

"The provinces have been charged with failure to enforce the law but where they attempted to they were immediately criticized for interfering with the raising of funds for war charities.

"The Alberta government takes the position that if the section of the code is wrong it should be changed by the federal government but until it is changed, now that the major reason for holding lotteries no longer exists, the provincial government must discharge its duty to enforce the law."

NO OBJECTION MADE

Mr. Manning said that so far there have been no objections from organizations conducting lotteries for war purposes on the setting of the calendar end of the year as the date to conclude such activities.

About 10 days ago city police visited offices of Edmonton organizations currently conducting raffles for war charities and other purposes and advised them to cease their activities. After sale of tickets was halted temporarily it was resumed while the Alberta government studied the course of action it would take.

U. of A. Expects Big Enrollment

Registration for its first post-war term at the University of Alberta commenced in Convocation Hall, University campus on Monday, with 297 students being listed. A large enrollment is forecast.

Included in this number were 178 under the War Emergency measure, these being in the Faculty of Education for courses designed to meet the shortage of teachers.

Medical and dental students made up the balance of the registrations up to Monday night.

Registration in both classes is continuing on Tuesday.

Courageous City Chaplain Tells Of Experiences

He is also one of the greatest statesmen of all time and a great general in addition," the pope had replied.

Most people think of the pope as a stern, sad-faced individual, but Maj. Laboissiere discovered that the head of the Catholic church also possesses a keen sense of humor.

MASTER OF LANGUAGES

Master of nine languages he switches from one tongue to another with amazing facility.

Churchill addressed the pope in French but His Holiness replied in English.

Rev. Laboissiere described his meeting with the pope as "most impressive."

While awaiting his summons to enter the papal chamber the Edmonton priest viewed what he secretly nourishes as a humorous fetish.

It was the sight of Churchill, ever-present cigar in his mouth, talking to a captain of the famed Swiss Guards.

"The guard was a giant—probably six feet eight inches in height.

"At a distance the cigar-puffing Churchill seemed to be asking, 'How are things up there?' of the guard," the Edmontonian recalled.

ANOTHER GREAT THRILL

Another great thrill of the chaplain was his short, informal chat with Their Majesties the King and Queen.

"It was when the regiment was stationed in Scotland and my parish of Canadian troops included Balmoral, summer home of the King and Queen.

"The King had just inspected the troops. I was driving down a road nearby when I saw Their Majesties swing towards me on the way to a fishing expedition. The King wore a kilt.

"I said to my driver: 'Guess who is coming?' When I told him he got excited and asked what we should do. I told him not to get excited.

CHATTED IN ROAD

"I stopped the car and we got out. When Their Majesties came up we both saluted and then we chatted on that country road for about 20 minutes.

"I told the King I was most honored indeed to have Their Majesties in my parish and the King laughingly pointed out it was the first time since 1715 that Balmoral had been part of a Catholic parish.

"The King asked me many questions about the Canadian troops. He wanted to know how they liked it in the British Isles. I told him they liked it very much, especially in Scotland, where they were greatly impressed with the warm hospitality of the people.

"This seemed to please the Queen very much. She always seemed to be adding a word here and there. Queen Elizabeth also possesses a fine sense of humor in addition to being a most gracious lady."

SAW OTHER LEADERS

Others among the world's great at the time with whom Maj. Laboissiere talked included Clement Attlee, General Charles de Gaulle and the late Premier Sikorski of Poland.

The years that the priest has spent with Canada's fighting men, in training camps and in the front line, sharing the common danger, the privations and the suffering inseparable from war, has broadened him greatly and he has become a real philosopher in the true sense of the word.

The most indelible impression carried home from the battlefields by the Edmonton priest was:

"The wonderful bravery of our men. They are really brave," the chaplain said.

"One it was with a group of 46 wounded Canadians. Not a man cried or became excited.

GERMANS MADE FUSS

"I couldn't help comparing them to German prisoner wounded I have seen yelling and making a great fuss."

In the thick of battle the priest often administered the last consolations of his church to Catholic, Protestant and Hebrew soldier alike. "Anyone who asked for comfort in fact," he said.

He found Canadian soldiers truly religious, "but they won't let anyone force religion on them," he explained.

But the priest possesses the knack of getting men of his own faith out to mass regularly, and with a wide grin, he recounted how he was able to boost attendance at church for his fellow-chaplains of Protestant denominations.

"Some of the Protestant padres were deploring the fact their congregations weren't very large while we were training in Scotland so I went to several of the Protestant soldiers whom I knew well and asked them why they didn't attend church," Maj. Laboissiere said.

NO REAL ANSWERS

"The men had no real answers. I asked them if they considered themselves Christians and they replied that they did. They also admitted they had attended church fairly regularly back home in Canada.

"Their mothers had influenced them at home. So I told them their mothers were not with them now. I explained how happy it would make their mothers to know they had kept up their church attendance. Next Sunday several Protestant padres came and asked me how I did it."

Now a member of the Canadian Legion, Maj. Laboissiere believes the men who fought overseas are determined that things will never again be what they were before the war.

Of the veterans he said:

SOUGHT BETTER WORLD

"They fought for a better world—a much better world—and much better conditions in Canada, and if they are kept waiting by the politicians too long there is apt to be trouble. They have been promised so many things. There is no doubt that the communist influence is strong. The men realize they were supplied with most of their material requirements while in the service. They will ask why that is not possible during peace.

"I feel that the Christian churches must give leadership, must work together in assuring the veterans of the new world for which they fought. If not we will face a severe setback.

"Another thing that impressed me was the unity and fraternity of the soldiers regardless of nationality, race or religion.

"None of these differences seemed to matter over there," the cleric said.

FINE CO-OPERATION

The padre said that the finest spirit of co-operation existed among chaplains of all denominations.

"We often met together and discussed our mutual problems. Never once did we fail to reach a unanimous decision on what was to be done. It was truly wonderful."

There were many sad duties to perform by the padres. Comforting the dying and burial of the dead were two exceedingly sorrowful tasks.

"Our Canadians were wonderful even in their dying moments. Many youngsters would say:

"'Father, I am not afraid to die for my country. Please tell my mother I died as a good Christian and a good Canadian'."

Maj. Laboissiere observed that it is regrettable "we now return to some of the former sharp divisions."

He often met men of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment in Italy. There was no finer fighting unit in any Allied force, according to the padre.

TALKED OVER OLD TIMES

One day he met Jean Longoz of North Edmonton, up in the front line and had a good talk over old times in Edmonton.

Another Edmontonian he recollects meeting in Italy was Capt. Romeo Golet who suffered severe shellshock while serving with The Loyal Edmontons.

"I was able, as senior padre, to see many secret documents and reports on various units. Never once did I see a report of complaint on a single officer or man of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment."

He compiled a diary while overseas and many of the entries make powerful and interesting reading.

One entry deals with burial of the dead as follows:

THE HARDEST JOB

"The hardest job for the chaplain was the burial of our dead soldiers. Sometimes it was done under shellfire. There was a party of four men detailed to dig the graves by the roadside. I always carried a dozen white crosses in my truck and the bodies were identified through the tags around their necks.

"We usually wrapped the bodies in a blanket. Those burials were temporary. All the dead are now buried in our beautiful Canadian cemetery at Ortona and each soldier has his own white marble cross.

"One night in April, 1944, my regiment, the Royal 22nd, was in the front line at Villa Grande, a little village near Ortona.

"We were stationed a few hundred yards from the enemy. Our RAF, where I was staying, was located in a muddy gully. About 10 a.m. a wounded soldier came in and our doctor decided to evacuate him to hospital, so he asked me for the use of my light truck. The doctor's jeep was out of order.

I accepted.

DANGEROUS MISSION

"The trip out of the line was giving me the opportunity of taking to the cemetery the body of a soldier which was lying near my dugout. It was a dangerous mission involving getting out of our positions in broad daylight right under the noses of the Germans. We all made a good act of confidence and started nervously on our journey.

"We climbed the hill at full speed and crossed the village like a tornado. For two minutes we were in the open and a perfect target.

"We soon learned the Germans were watching. As we neared a small bridge two shells exploded about 80 feet ahead. My experienced driver did not lose his head. Instead of putting on the brakes he stepped on the gas. He instinctively lowered our heads and went blindly through the smoke and flying stones to cross the bridge at 70 MPH. When out of range we stopped to catch our breath. The rear of the car was smashed but no one was hurt.

ARRIVED AT CEMETERY

"On the way we put our wounded soldier in hospital. We arrived safely at the cemetery near the famous Cas Berardi where Maj. Tryquet won his Victoria Cross some months previously. As we were carrying the body toward a grave we heard the sound of Canadian tanks rushing along the highway.

"My driver remarked he didn't like those tanks; tanks always draw enemy fire. We decided to hide until they passed the cemetery.

"We had just reached a big stone house a few hundred feet away when the German shells started exploding all around the cemetery and on the highway. After the shelling stopped we nervously returned to the cemetery, but the body of our dead comrade was no longer there. It had been totally destroyed by the shells. I thanked God and my driver. Had we remained in the cemetery we would surely have been killed. We had to wait until 9 p.m. to return to the lines under cover of darkness."

AGAIN UNDER FIRE

On another occasion the chaplain was inside a house in an Italian village when the Germans fired 52 shells in 60 seconds. They exploded all around the house and Maj. Laboissiere suddenly found his head thrust inside the oven of a big hot stove. A shell had come through the roof. Several soldiers were also in the house but all miraculously escaped injury.

The diary concludes in understatement—half in wistful sorrow, half a prayer of hope:

"Yes, it is all over now. I am back to my dear Canada and have found peace and quiet again in a Franciscan monastery. . . Yet, nearly every night I think of those wonderful days, of long night marches in the mud, of long days of weary waiting, of the many sleepless nights, of the white crosses, landmarks of our warfare on the Adriatic front. Often I think of those boys who answered so quickly the final roll call and I hear them saying:

"'Father, we are going on a night patrol. Give us absolution. Pray for us and for our mothers back home.' I see myself again waiting for those who never came back and are buried in no man's land.

MUST BE REMEMBERED

"I hope their hardships, their sacrifices and their faith will be remembered forever by our fellow-citizens because they have given their lives for their God and their country."

While a mere youngster he joined a Montreal regiment in the First Great War but was speedily discharged because of his age.

Maj. Laboissiere was born in St. Hyacinth, Quebec, in 1901. He received high school training in Three Rivers and entered the Franciscan Novitiate at Sherbrooke in 1922.

After studying philosophy in Quebec and theology in Montreal, he was ordained to the priesthood in 1928.

For a year he taught at St. Bonaventure's College, Alleghany, N.Y.

During the next 10 years he successively fulfilled the duties of prefect of discipline and rector at St. Anthony's College, North Edmonton. While waiting to enter the army he was assistant at St. Mary's Cathedral, Winnipeg.

He was appointed chaplain to the Canadian forces in June of 1940.

On his way to Iceland on July 25, his ship was torpedoed and all aboard, including many troops, had to return to Halifax.

Until April, 1941, he performed chaplain duties at Montreal military headquarters and Valcartier camp.

WITH FORESTRY CORPS

After going overseas he was chaplain to the Canadian Forestry Corps for a time.

In 1943 he became chaplain with the British Eighth Army, the Canadian troops in the Mediterranean and the Free French Air Force in Algeria.

From December, 1943, until March, 1944, he was padre of the Royal 22nd Regiment of Montreal.

Maj. Laboissiere, one of Edmonton's fighting chaplains, is now ready for the conquests of peace.

ing Mayor John W. Fry's recent illness he served as deputy mayor for a considerable period.

The following is the text of Mr. Jones' statement:

UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT

"At a meeting of the executive of the Citizens' committee Monday afternoon, it was unanimously agreed to nominate Ald. R. Winslow Hamilton as its candidate for mayor in the coming civic election. The members of the committee feel confident that the citizens of Edmonton in all walks of life will find satisfaction in the fact that they have secured Mr. Hamilton's consent to accept the nomination."

Mr. Hamilton has been selected in response to a wide public demand for a young man as mayor, coupled with the belief that a candidate for mayor should have had experience on the council. Mr. Hamilton has given excellent service as an alderman.

"During a period of service as deputy mayor during Mayor Fry's illness, Mr. Hamilton demonstrated marked ability as a chief magistrate. In the consecutive period ahead we feel that a young man, with the business ability and administrative talent possessed by Mr. Hamilton, is our best possible choice."

"It is hoped that within the next two weeks the committee will be in a position to nominate the candidates, as endorsed, for vacancies on the council and the public school board."

BORN IN ENGLAND

Mr. Hamilton was born at Liverpool, England, in 1911, and received his education at Victoria high school and the University of Alberta. He was graduated from the University of Alberta in 1931 with the degree of bachelor of commerce. He was one of the university's most outstanding students, and won the Hudson's Bay Co., and the T. Eaton Co., prizes in commerce, and the Institute of Chartered Accountants gold medal in accountancy.

He was articled to the firm of F. G. Winspear & Co., in 1931, and in 1933 was admitted to membership in the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Alberta. He became a partner in the F. G. Winspear Co., in 1935.

Mr. Hamilton is a sessional instructor in accountancy at the University of Alberta.

When war broke out in 1939 he was lieutenant paymaster of the regimental depot, Edmonton Fusiliers, but was rejected for military service on medical grounds.

He was married in June 1936 to Jean Christian McKinnon, daughter of the late Reginald McKinnon and Mary Ryan Nicholson of Edinburgh, Scotland.

He is an Anglican, and a member of the Optimist Club.

stant menace of unlimited temptations, said Dean Trendell.

The speaker pointed to the large number of delinquents left and what he termed a general lowering of moral standards, much of which was due to materialist philosophies which mankind had embraced in the past, and in some countries even in the present.

The speaker referred to "Nazism, Communism and many other 'isms', and said in Canada today we had one comparable philosophy capable of weathering the storms of opposing philosophies, and that was Christianity.

"Tens of thousands of Canadian children are given no chance to learn the Christian philosophy," charged the speaker, and warned that if we were to prevent a recurrence of war and a resurgence of all its attendant evils we would be well advised to teach the children the truth and grace of Christianity.

HOME IS NEEDED

Returning to the question of what to do with the delinquent child, Dean Trendell said, "we badly need in this city of Edmonton a proper detention home, and we need it now". In addition to this there was need of an institution designed for the care and treatment of sub-normal children.

Any suggestion of punishment in sending delinquents to institutions should be scrupulously avoided. They should be instilled with the idea that their training was attractive and that through it they would become wanted and useful citizens.

"Of course this would all cost money, but it would be the finest investment we could make because it is investing in the cause of building true citizens", Dean Trendell concluded.

Alfred Noak, Gyro president, was in the chair.

May Boost Ontario Liquor Allowances

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—(CP)—The Globe and Mail said today Ontario's monthly liquor ration may be raised to 104 ounces monthly under a plan whereby an extra bottle of gin or rum would be added every two weeks to the current monthly ration of 52 ounces of spirits.

As an alternative, the story says, the Ontario liquor control board may permit unrestricted sale of gin and rum in an effort to relieve pressure on available rye whisky supplies.

The Globe and Mail said "it is believed the time is rapidly approaching when the rationing Mary Ryan Nicholson of Edin- system will be abandoned altogether, although board officials were reluctant to set any appropriate date as to when they thought this would occur".

In a separate story, the newspaper said the Ontario government is preparing "complete overhaul" of the province's liquor system to overcome "certain objectionable features", but that no changes affecting methods of sale will be made until supply and demand reach a more normal basis.

Genial Adm. Sir Bruce Fraser

Britain's Top Seadog in Pacific May Become Boss of Admiralty

By HAL BOYLE

ABOARD BATTLESHIP DUKE OF YORK, En Route to Hong Kong, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Top British seadog in the Pacific is a 57-year-old Scottish bachelor who knows his way around with a Russian balalaika as well as on a battleship.

He is Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, whose present assignment as commander-in-chief of the British Pacific fleet, with some 400 ships of all types under his command, crowns 42 years of service in the Royal Navy.

He began as a 15-year-old "snotty," Royal Navy slang for midshipman, and may well wind up as Britain's first sea lord, the peak of any regular navy man's career.

ADMIRAL FRASER

NOT LIKE SEADOG

"Tubby," as fellow admirals call the stocky, five-foot-eight-inch Scot, looks like anything but a seadog.

He is an easy-going, friendly, approachable man with gray hair and light blue eyes that really smile. Perhaps because he has never been married and has no children of his own, he is especially kind to junior officers, who normally lead Spartan lives in the Royal Navy. They idolize him.

Sir Bruce comes from a military family—his father was an army general and his brother followed the parental footsteps, making life in the navy automatic for Sir Bruce, for in those days it was customary for such families to give one son to the army and one to the navy.

When he isn't at sea, this genial pipe-smoking admiral lives with his aged invalid mother in their modest family home near Hampton Palace by the Thames. The home is crowded with souvenirs from his global seafaring.

Ties between mother and son are exceedingly close and the first thing the admiralty did after Admiral Fraser had finished sinking the German battleship Scharnhorst was to send word of the son's victory to his mother, now in her 80's.

The hour of the battle, Dec. 23, 1943, off North Cape, Norway, in the midst of Arctic darkness, Sir Bruce sent the admiralty a two-word message. It said: "Scharnhorst sunk."

Similarly, when his ship steamed into Sagami Bay at the war's end, he messaged cryptically: "The fleet is anchored in Japanese waters."

His diaries are less terse, however, than his spoken words.

As third sea lord at the start of the war, he organized the construction and repair of all British fleet units. He is recognized as the Royal Navy's premier gunner and a master of navigation and of surface and air co-ordination, having personally commanded the fleet's first modern aircraft carriers.

DELIVERED SUPPLIES

One of his greatest feats was the protection of convoys to Russia along the northern route, and he delivered 1,250,000 tons of supplies to the Soviets over the Arctic sea lanes. He climaxed this by a personal visit to Murmansk aboard the first battleship ever to enter that northern port.

The Russians gave him a hysterical welcome and probably no one but himself recalled that during the First Great War the Bolsheviks had interned him for eight months after he and his naval party were seized at Baku while en route to the Caspian Sea.

Among other presents showered on the admiral was a balalaika (triangular Russian guitar) which he learned to play, singing his own accompaniment, but not in public.

FAVORITE HOBBIES

Gardening and writing are his favorite hobbies, but he almost single-mindedly sticks to the navy and reads chiefly biographies and naval histories.

He has a good sense of humor and likes social life. He also has a strong Scottish stubbornness once he has decided on a line of action. He has commanded the British home fleet and holds many honors from his own and foreign governments. But the most striking thing about him is the loyalty he has instilled in his subordinates.

He asked one young lieutenant commander to tell me frankly what he thought of Sir Bruce and he said:

"I would give my life gladly any time to save him, and I mean it. I wouldn't say that about any other admiral. I like my own life."

Preacher Expects End of the World Will Come Friday

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Rev. Charles G. Long, who predicts the world will come to an end Friday, held a press conference yesterday and announced that the exact time would be 3:33 p.m.

He said he did not know whether the hour would be Jerusalem or California time. If Jerusalem time, he said, the hour would be 7:33 a.m., California time 8:33 a.m. MDT.

The 72-year-old Pasadena prophet and his son, Richard, 32, left a loop-hole, however. They said there might be a delay until the fall.

"Nothing But Slums"

"Low cost housing" declares Sidney Parsons, president of the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council, "can produce nothing but slums."

This is preeminently true. And it adds to the host of reasons why private enterprise cannot possibly supply the kind of housing 80 percent of Canada's people and most discharged servicemen require under present conditions.

The houses built under the National Housing Act are constructed at a price that will permit them to be bought or rented only at monthly payments of $30 or more. That is the purchase capacity of the 80 percent if the people with net incomes of less than $2150—in which case, as Mr. Parsons points out, Canadian cities will be creating eventual slum areas; or Ottawa can subsidize the national credit and subsidize home building so that Canada's 80 percent can have modern low rental homes in which to live while all the people of Canada absorb the loss.

Only the utilization of the interest-free funds of the Bank of Canada can meet the situation.

If the housing problem is left to private enterprise, as Finance Minister Ilsley insists that it be left, the lower-salaried 80 percent, including most servicemen, must either do without homes at all or live in ramshackle structures that eventually will be slums.

Work for All

Hon. C. D. Howe, who heads the federal department of reconstruction and is therefore responsible for employment services, says there are now two jobs open in Canada for every applicant. That is the best kind of news that could come from that branch of the public service. No country is bothered for hard times when there is a surplus of jobs.

This of course does not mean that there are no men or women who cannot find the kinds of jobs they want in the localities where they happen to be. There will have to be a redistribution of people who were drawn to certain centres for wartime work before that happy situation can come about.

Many will have to go back to pre-war jobs they hoped they had left for good. Some will have to accept jobs they do not prefer, for a time at least. Some, both from the armed services and from civilian ranks, are taking time out, and applicants may not be as numerous on that account as they will be later on.

But there is work in Canada for all who want work and are willing to accommodate themselves to the changing circumstances of the reconversion period. Where anyone is idle, it is a question of changing jobs or changing locations—not a sign that employment cannot be obtained somewhere in the country.

There is no reason why such should not continue to be the case. Canada is an undeveloped country. We have hardly started to tap its resources to account. Work for those of working age should never be unobtainable in such a country, and never will if the direction of national policy and the initiative of our people are in keeping with the opportunities provided by nature.

The Public Interest

The strike of Ford employees at Windsor seems to have put the vast enterprises of that corporation group out of business on both sides of the international boundary. At Detroit it was announced that the plants are virtually out of production and 50,000 men out of jobs. If the blockade spreads outward to concerns which supply these enterprises with parts and materials, other shut-downs and lay-offs will follow. And employees of the Chrysler company have decided to stage a sympathy strike, though appealing for a conciliation board to deal with their own claims.

With the causes, the course of events, and the outcome of the tie-up, the public at large has nothing to do. They are only spectators. These are matters to be dealt with by official investigators, for which legislative provision exists. But the prospective side-results are very much the business of the public. It isn't just a private fight. If the blockade goes on an indefinite number of thousands of men in either country will be out of work, while farmers and business men everywhere will be hampered in their operations by the continued scarcity of motor vehicles.

What stands out from the situation is that the return from war to peace conditions on both sides of the international boundary will be halted and retarded if there are to be shut-downs of great industrial concerns which employ vast numbers of people and supply vital civilian needs.

It is to be assumed that the authorities of both countries will take whatever measures seem most likely to get the stalled plants in operations, set a precedent for action to prevent deadlocks in other lines of production, and reassure the public that the transition to peacetime existence is not to be blocked and retarded by outbreaks of labor "war" in the great industrial areas.

Good Appointment

Announcement by the government that the Alberta Liquor Control Board has been increased from a two man to a three man board, and that Mr. A. J. Mason, who has been secretary of the board since March, 1924, has been elevated to the position of commissioner, will be received with general satisfaction throughout the province.

Mr. Mason has been connected with the Alberta Liquor Control Board since its inception. Following the resignation of Mr. R. J. Dinning, first chairman of the board, in February, 1937, Mr. Mason became the acting chairman, and until August of that year carried out the duties in connection with that office with credit to himself and the province. No man in Alberta is better experienced or has a better knowledge of the workings of Alberta's Liquor legislation, and no appointment that the government could make to the full cognizance of the past policies of the board and with a wealth of experience in the always difficult problems of liquor law administration which is possessed by no other man in the province.

His appointment will meet with general approval.

Sugar Situation

Editor, Bulletin: A recent remarkable circular letter from the sugar control to grocery stores and elsewhere disclosed the amazing fact that Canada has no control over her domestic production of beet sugar either now or in the future and the statement is made that "Increased beet production would therefore not help the domestic situation for it is a plus to supplies, but would only assist the general world position in this commodity."

The further implication is carried that for the above reason no increase in beet production is worth bothering about.

I submit:

1. That if the Canadian government has committed this country in such a manner and to such an extent, it is high time that the country's commitment in respect of future domestic production be cancelled, and that those responsible for such an iniquitous undertaking be removed to a place where they can do no further damage.

2. That the control of sugar in Canada is in the hands of interests who are concerned, first, last and all the time, with the production of the cane sugar industry and that these interests are prepared to sacrifice vast sums in public revenue and all considerations of public welfare and convenience to attain their objects.

3. That if the Canadian public do not wish to be kept indefinitely without adequate sugar supplies they organize such intense pressure upon the government as will compel a change of personnel in sugar administration and an immediate program of increased beet production. In the early attainment of which there is no obstacle or difficulty whatever.

Meat Rationing

Editor, Bulletin: In respect to meat rationing, according to all the evidence I can gather there is no necessity for such a measure at the present time. The meat trade and the public will probably remember that shortly after Roosevelt Board was empanelled so that Britain would be assured regarding her bacon requirements a situation arose whereby Britain could not accept those supplies for a time owing to the fact that she had overstocked in Europe and the Balkan states. Their purpose, I suppose was to keep that commodity from falling in value. Result: The Bacon Board had accumulated immense stocks every packing plant in Canada was pinched to the door with pork and pork products. Something had to be done quickly or all long marketing facilities would be choked. Therefore an urgent appeal was sent out by the government by radio and through the press for meat merchants to push pork and pork products, and behold something miraculous happened. Everybody began to switch their buying to these products.

This appeal was given substantial support as far as the meat merchants were concerned and, as all women's organizations had been active stressing support of the appeal, the public responded splendidly.

But it was not all Canadian pork that our conscientious patriotic citizens bought in good faith. It was United States corn fed pork shipped in by large packing plants. You see, at that time the Canadian hog market was considerably higher than the U.S. market. So our plants took the opportunity to make a good profit out of their patriotism.

I will now take you to June and July, 1941. Conditions were reversed, the glut of pork and pork products, were entirely ours and a serious shortage loomed ahead. Another appeal was issued; this time it was about your patriotism by avoiding buying pork, as Britain required every pound we could produce. And, by the way, only 5 per cent of Britain's shipments, and raised from four to six cents per lb. to the Canadian consumer. This left the impression that short delivery of hogs was the cause. But official figures showed that in the week ending July 5, there had been 12,736 more hogs marketed than that of the corresponding week of 1940 and for the full year ending July 5 an increase over same period in 1940 of 564,310 head.

Again advantage was taken of patriotism, carloads of pork products were shipped across the line, thereby raising the price on Canadian consuming to unjustifiable rate of Britain. We will now come a little closer to grips with our present supposed rationing. This left the meats all frozen some time ago, on the contention that canned meat would be required for Europe's starving. Then last week rationing was resumed on the same contention, and to the same breath they release canned meat. Now the above facts don't add up and make sense or honest dealing.

The Tory Tradition

By CHARLES HERBERT HEUSTIS
In Toronto Star

The term Tory was first used to describe Irish outlaws and was borrowed by the English as a name for the supporters of the Duke of York, later James II, when Shaftesbury proposed his exclusion from the throne because of his adherence to Roman Catholic faith. The name then lost its opprobrium and designated the party upholding the doctrine of hereditary right. After the revolution of 1688 the Tories were the High Church party who opposed religious toleration and foreign entanglements. After the French revolution the party, for a time, supported the status quo, but after 1822 the influence of that event began to make itself felt and policies of practical reform began to appear. With the Reform Bill the name Tory gave way to that of Conservative, and today it is applied mainly, but by no means exclusively, to the extreme Right wing of the party. It is in this sense that the word is used in this article.

The party, by whatever name it may be called—and in Canada it has changed its name a number of times—has been remarkable for its ability to escape its traditional policies of conservatism and fear of any revolutionary change from below, with the people. It has been called the party of "property, privilege and prerogative," but property, religion and Empire are the three legs of the stool on which Toryism has sustained itself, and the removal of any one of them spells disaster. Property because it is the insignia of wealth and the means of more wealth; religion because it helps to keep people "in that state of life into which it has pleased God to call them," and Empire because the prestige it gives while at the same time provides jobs for the scions of nobility and the upper classes, and a field for the employment of considerable wealth to a small, but very influential section of the people. It was John Bright, I think, who said, "The British Empire is a gigantic system of out-door relief for the British governing classes."

It was this Right wing of Tory England of which Emerson wrote over a half-century ago: "Truth in Canada comes in the public marks these home-loving men. Their political conduct is not decided by general views, but by inward intrigues and family interests. They cannot readily see beyond England, nor in England can they transcend the interests of the governing classes. 'English principles' mean a primary regard for property . . . They do not occupy themselves in matters of general and lasting import, but on corporeal civilization, in goods that perish with the using. . . . There is cramp limitation in their habit of thought, a sleepy routine and a tortoise's instinct to hold hard to the ground lest he be thrown on his back. There is drag of inertia which resents reform in any shape."

It would be unfair to judge the people as a whole from this description, but no one can read Haxey's "Tory M.P." or Horton's "A People's History of England," without realizing that it is not an unfair description of the British upper classes. The conduct of the British government during the interwar years, the farce of non-intervention in the Spanish struggle, the encouragement of Hitler and Mussolini, the Munich agreements involving the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia—was not the product of stupidity, muddling or weakness, but of simple real politik. Once the first step was taken in the refusal to stop Japan in Manchuria the rest steps followed and the end became clear with a cold, hard logic of its own. Above all things the Soviet Union must be stopped in its steps. All the tragic events that followed were a perfect unfolding of the policies which guided Baldwin and Chamberlain.

When Sir Oswald Mosley's Black Shirts began their pro-Nazi campaign, they were at once recognized as the legitimate offspring of the die-hard Tories. A Tory M.P., Sir Thomas Moore, speaking in Albert Hall in 1934, to a meeting of the British Union of Fascists, said: "What is there in a black shirt which gives apparent dignity and intelligence to the wearer . . .? All seemingly follow with the same emotion, pride of race, love of country, loyalty, hope . . . As I listened to Sir Oswald Mosley I got my answer. There was little if any of the policy which could not be accepted by the most loyal of our present Conservatives. The majority of the essentials and many of the details are part and parcel of the Tory doctrines . . . Why should there not be concord and agreement between political conduct is not decided by general views, but by inward intrigues and family interests. They cannot readily see beyond England, nor in England can they transcend the interests of the governing classes. 'English principles' mean a primary regard for property . . . They do not occupy themselves in matters of general and lasting import, but on corporeal civilization, in goods that perish with the using. . . . There is cramp limitation in their habit of thought, a sleepy routine and a tortoise's instinct to hold hard to the ground lest he be thrown on his back. There was little if any of the policy which could not be accepted by the most loyal of our present Conservatives. The majority of the essentials and many of the details are part and parcel of the Tory doctrines . . . Why should there not be concord and agreement between that old historical party and this new and virile offshoot."

It is amazing the extent to which the Tory tradition has dominated British politics. The recent election four once said—perhaps in an unguarded moment—that "no matter what party is in office, the Conservatives will always rule the country." Hilaire Belloc once put this idea into verse:

"The accursed Power which stands on Privilege
(And goes with Women and Champagne and Bridge)
Broke—and Democracy returned to reign:
(Which goes with Bridge and Women and Champagne'.

Mr. Churchill was for some years a member of the Liberal party, but he was always a confirmed conservative; he backed nobilities and thrones against the remonism people. That he could, during the recent election campaign, spend time and eloquence extolling the outmoded system of private enterprise "which made British great," with all Europe desolate, its cities a mass of ruins, its industries destroyed, is striking for planning on a gigantic scale, shows how a very great man may still have a conditioned mind.

Great Britain has been called "the mother of democracy" and in an important sense this is true, nevertheless the right of the vote was only conceded to the people in the 19th century. Before 1832 the electorate was less than a quarter of a million. The women did not get the vote till 1929 and had to fight for it against fierce opposition. Sir Reginald Bond, writing in 1929 on "The Conservative Outlook," said, . . . "only in very recent times has England ever been a democratic state. The great parliamentarians of the 18th and 19th centuries repudiated with disgust any such theory." The first government grant in aid of education was made in 1833, soon after the Reform Act. Compulsory education of children was only introduced in 1870, and only up to 12 years of age at that. In 1932 a Tory M.P. could write: "The time is ripe for a complete reversal of the policy that children should be educated irrespective of any contribution which their parents make." During the depression of the '30's another Tory M.P. said: "I would take the vote from those who have been in receipt of the Dole for more than a fixed period of weeks in each year." Quite in harmony with the Tory tradition!

Mrs. Noggins Looks for Normal

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

I SEEN in the papers," said my friend, Mrs. Noggins, parking herself beside me in the bus, along with a bunch of eggs and a chicken and two plucked geese, "as everybody in the States wants to get back to normal. I don't know rightly what normal is, except there never was any. The only real signs I see of things gettin' back to normal is the way they start to kill people on the roads, one every fifteen minutes, all over the country, which is twice as many with accidents as they did in the war, and divorces is going in couples instead of singles and is comin' back and there's goin' to be organizations pressing for the beautification of the city, as no city in Canada lends itself more to such projects. Of course the more essential things such as homes, extension of transportation, improvements to streets and lanes, better lighting, installation of sewers, water and gas mains etc., must come first. It is a big order and much of this work is long overdue, but we have piled up a big surplus, and properly expended, our reserves can give us much needed improvements and make Edmonton the city beautiful and a peaceful, happy and healthful place in which to live.

They're Baffled

Editor Bulletin: So we spend five and a half years overseas fighting for our country, and on our return we look forward eagerly to the cessation of hostilities so that we can settle down to the peaceful pursuits and partake of delicious foodstuffs which were not available for us on the various fighting fronts of the world. And so we come home and what do we find?—"the juicy, delicious T-bone steak we had such high hopes of eating is not to be found and we learn, much to our disgust and resentment, that our good fellows in Ottawa, who have been dealing such terrific blows at our enemies, and our generous Government has left us the remains, namely: brains, spareribs and pigs feet".

Unfortunately we, the writers of this missive, are not endowed with an overabundance of grey matter and therefore we are at a loss to know why there should be meat rationing in this vast and wealthy country?

As Ye Sow

Editor Bulletin: Having been a subscriber of your splendid paper, I take great pleasure in The Bulletin' columns but Mr. Vaughan's letter burned me up, and if he were Mary of Lamb's size I would write a public apology to the Canadian girls.

He seems to take a very sadistic pleasure in "listing" his fellow countrymen. I must say I would not be proud to have him as my son.

My own son married a nice English girl. She uses make-up and smokes, and can do other things of talking, but she is a sweet girl and we think the world of her; but she is no sweeter or nicer than my own Canadian daughter.

If Mr. Vaughan did not use a fictitious name when he wrote the letter, I am sure he will be ashamed to be known, for he will receive nothing but scorn and his innocent wife with him. As you sow so shall you reap.

SOLDIER'S MOTHER

be more liquor and the standard of livin' is goin' up and everybody is terrified of the future. I guess we're gettin' back to normal all right. Good, and fast it!"

"Even the Russians is gettin' back to normal. I seen in the morning paper where Lord Beaverbrook Morgan estate, a little bungalow of forty rooms on Long Island, just for the recreation of the Russian officials in Washington on the week-ends. Even Communists is back to normal at the week-end when they get bored with the world revolution and equality for everybody and all that kind of stuff you know. I could stand a little bit of normal stuff myself after a 'ard week with my poultry; but I'd give it's not for us the proletaris. Sometimes by the end of the week I'm just about ready to join the C.C.F. and take it easy.

"I remember the last time things was normal, back in 1929 when the biggest boom we ever seen, up to then, and everybody wearin' silk shirts. And wot was they thinkin' about? Why, they was waitin' for prosperity to just around the corner. And for the last five years, which made the boom look like a depression, people 'as been waitin' for good times to come back. I bin thinkin' about it and I come to the conclusion you're only normal when you're longin' for somethin' different and shoutin'. If you could give us all normal times for six months we'd curl up and die just from bein' bored. But there's no chance of that and no use waitin' for it to 'appen.

THE ALDERMAN WENT TO JAIL

"Like my Uncle 'Erbert—'e was an alderman in Liverpool you know, before they put 'im in jail over a small matter of bookkeepin'—well, 'Erbert kept puttin' everything off and postponin' 'is career in politics until things settled down to normal. Wait a bit, 'e'd say, till the country settles down. But things didn't settle down except Uncle 'Erbert, and 'e settled down in a pub lower and lower, until around eleven o'clock they'd carry 'im home. Uncle 'Erbert was normal by ten o'clock every night when 'e couldn't talk any more.

"Poor old 'Erbert, 'e waited fifty years for things to settle down and died of old age and a liver, still expectin' things to be normal tomorrow mornin', but when the normal time came 'e took sick and nothink normal either. And if we all settle down now to wait for normal we'll all be the same as poor 'Erbert, except for the liquer ration.

"Well, air, 'e might of bin a great man if 'e'd only waited for things to settle down and a lot of people today could be leadin' 'appy lives if they'd just 'ad a 'ead and 'ad a 'erbert instead of waitin' for good times to come back. If the men who 'ave been in the country 'ad waited for things to get normal we'd still be livin' like the Indians. That was the only normal people that ever lived. The Red killed 'em off and waited for things to get normal.

NORMAL LIKE UNPAID BILLS

"You take my neighbors, the Boggs, a nice young couple with three liddies and another comin' in February and the first not paid for yet. They're waitin' like patriots for things to get normal so that when 'e gets 'ome 'e'll 'ave spent all their wages in advance on hinstallments on a new car and refrigerator and two hinstallments behind on a vacuum cleaner and can't pay me for my milk. Things is piled up like piles up for a couple of months I know things is normal with the Boggs when the country is settled down again.

"The way I see it, sir, the country never was normal and average times was never normal. It never existed anywheres. But bless you, nobody wants to be normal. Normal is what you want everybody else to be and no one ever 'as been grease there, sir, in the basket, they're the only normal things you'll see about this town today, and look at 'em."

I looked at them. Their plucked geese lolled out of the basket and their faces were very peaceful.

SIDE GLANCES—"I know you're only being true to the Navy, dear, by wearing those little things . . . but after all, I've been nothing but sailors for 14 months!"

Bares Nazi Plea To Pope to Stop B-17 Air Raids

Edda Scolds Count for Being Anti-German—Duce Has a Pain

July 20-Sept. 25, 1942

Five weeks after the first B-17 raids on German-held Europe, the Nazis appealed to the Vatican to intervene and halt the bombing of "open cities", it is disclosed in the diary of Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law.

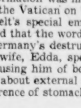

The information was included in a report by Italy's ambassador to the Vatican on the visit of Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's special emissary to the Holy See. Ciano wryly recalled that the word "coventrize" had been coined in Berlin for Germany's destructive raids on British cities.

Ciano's wife, Edda, spent a bitter afternoon with her husband, accusing him of being anti-German. Il Duce himself, worried about external and internal problems alike, suffered a recurrence of stomach trouble that alarmed his family and friends.

His mistress was trying to have her marriage annulled.

Ciano wrote:

JULY 20.—"Tamaro (minister to Switzerland) sends news from Switzerland about Anglo-German conversations he says are to take place in Lugano. He supplies a wealth of particulars. On the part of the Germans, those present are to be Seyss Inquart (Reichscommissar for the Netherlands), Rintelen (Nazi military mission chief in Italy), etc., and on the part of the British persons of more or less equal rank. Tamaro enclosed some snapshots, but I didn't recognize anyone. It all has a flavor of a cheap novel."

Ciano

JULY 23.—"Il Duce is furious with the military, who 'for the second time have made me a fool' by having him visit the front (in Egypt) at unhappy moments. He had given orders to Cavallero (Italian commander-in-chief) to send clearly the word 'Revere' (a river in Rome) when Cavallera was certain about the advance of our troops to the (Suez) canal. The password arrived Friday, June 27. Il Duce delayed the trip for two days because of a storm. Only when he was on the spot did he realize that things were not going well.

"The nomination of Cavallero as field marshal could not be avoided because Il Duce found himself 'between Rommel and Kesselring (Nazi marshals) like Christ between the thieves.'"

Nazis 'Annoyed' By 2nd Front Talk

JULY 24.—"From many sources the opening of a second front in France by the Anglo-Americans is reported to be certain. From what Alfieri (ambassador in Berlin) telegraphs, it is causing less concern than annoyance to the Germans."

AUG. 1.—"The situation in Sicily gives much worry. The peasants are refusing to turn in the grain, and in many cases shoot at the people who try to collect it. . . . In many working-class quarters, signs of malnutrition are appearing."

AUG. 2.—"Edda (Ciano's wife, Mussolini's daughter) attacked me violently, accusing me of hating the Germans, and saying that my dislike for them is known everywhere, especially among the Germans themselves. I cannot understand why Edda should be so excited, or who talked to her about it. Usually when she does this she has been influenced by someone, I said little or nothing in reply."

AUG. 4.—"Ambrosio, chief of the general staff . . . does not believe in a victory that will liquidate the enemies. He thinks, however, that Russia may be detached from the Allied camp, after which Great Britain and America will be obliged to come to terms."

AUG. 6 — "Arpinati (Buffarini's predecessor in the ministry of interior) asks a favor for some of his friends. He describes the situation in Romagna as dull and gray, because too many women of the Mussolini family are sticking their noses in local affairs. To these now is added Pelacci (Mussolini's mistress), who expresses judgment, sends messages, and intrigues in Rimini, where she is staying for the baths.

"Her sojourn in a certain Spisani, a third-rate dancing teacher, . . . it appears that Pelacci received from Mussolini. It is likely, because she is trying to have her marriage annulled."

AUG. 7 — "At Forli to attend the placing of Bruno's remains (Mussolini's son) in a vault. . . . Il Duce was outwardly impassive, but inwardly tormented. He kissed Bruno's tomb after the ceremony and, indicating the space between Bruno and the altar, he said a number of times that that was to be his.

"He was angry with the servants who accepted a basket of foodstuffs from some peasants. 'I do not intend to return from the tomb of my son with chickens and pears.'"

AUG. 8.—"Cases of malnutrition run through the provinces. Mussolini thinks more about it than he says, and more than he would have others believe. His stomach cramps have returned, and the old ulcer has come to life again. He is worrying."

AUG. 10.—"The taking of Maikop (oilfield in the Russian Caucasus) and agitation in India. . . . The first will have the effect of relieving, though not immediately nor altogether, the pressing oil problem of the Axis. The second, in the judgment of Il Duce, may precipitate an Asiatic crisis."

Lack of Oil Handicaps Navy

AUG. 12.—"An air-naval battle is in progress (as the British claim) to get a convoy through to beleaguered Malta) . . . We are in an inferior position. Our heavy vessels cannot leave port for lack of oil and of light escorts."

AUG. 15.—"A long conversation with Buti (ambassador to Paris). . . . French hatred for the Germans is growing by leaps and bounds, but not against us. But nothing will happen beyond demonstrations, killings, sabotage.

"The (French) government believes in an Axis victory. The people in victory of the Allies. De Gaulle, as a person, is despised by everyone, but the country at heart is De Gaullist. . . The feeling of the French for the British is identical with that of Italians for the Germans. At least for once, Buti couldn't have been more explicit."

AUG. 16.—"Resistance on the Russian front seems to stiffen. . . . From a Turkish telegram, intercepted by our services, it would seem that the standard of life in Russia is quite good, and the spirit of the people hopeful. Ambassador Zoppi (Italian) telegraphs. I have seen emaciated faces only in Vienna and Munich. In Kulbyshev (Soviet temporary capital after Moscow was evacuated) everyone lives well and eats abundantly.' For the diplomats he said the real enemy is boredom, and to defeat it everyone has given himself to drink with great deliberation."

AUG. 27.—"Long conversation with Ribbentrop (in Budapest, where Ciano went to attend the funeral of Stephen Horthy, son of Hungary's regent, who died in an airplane crash). His courtesy is unusual. He calls on me first, insists me to lunch, steps back at every doorway.

"Ribbentrop's tone is moderate, although he continues to be an optimist. The 'war is already won' of earlier days has now become 'we cannot lose this war.' . . . He says Russia is tough, very tough, and thinks that not even a Japanese attack would finish her."

AUG. 30.—"Ghigi (Italian representative in Athens) sends an SOS from Greece. The Germans are insisting on immense indemnities, the government threatens to resign, trouble can begin any minute."

AUG. 31.—"At 8 o'clock last night Rommel attacked in Libya. He chose the hour and the day well, at a time when no one was expecting it, and already had begun to appear on British tables."

Fuel Problem Stalls Rommel

SEPT. 2.—"Rommel is stationary in Egypt because of lack of fuel. Three of our tankers have been sunk in two days. Cavallero (Italian commander-in-chief) says other means will be found. . . . Indeed of oil tankers we can use ordinary vessels and hospital ships."

SEPT. 3.—"Mussolini is in a black humor. . . . He suffers stomach pains again. Yesterday he had himself examined by a radiologist. There is nothing serious the matter with him except gastritis, but it is painful and debilitating. He was unable to hide his suffering today."

SEPT. 9.—"The idea of an offensive (in Libya) is now given up, at least for some time. . . . As always victory finds a hundred fathers, but defeat is an orphan. They are quarreling in Libya, and Kesselring ran to Berlin to accuse Rommel. They are talking of Rommel's recall."

SEPT. 22.—"Fougier paints our airplane production in dark colors. Between us and Germany, we produce barely one-fifth or one-sixth as much as the Allies. The recruiting of pilots is falling off. Control of the skies will be in the hands of the Allies by the summer of 1943.

D'Ajeta (Ciano's secretary, now in Lisbon) refers to me a confidential conversation with Bismarck (Nazi minister) who now is certain Germany will be defeated and that Germany will go on to the 'bitter end.' Italy will find a way out.

Bottai (minister of national education) stayed with me two days in Legnano! . . . He says the war is illegal, because the Grand Council was not consulted. As usual, he is hostile to Mussolini. He calls him a

Striped Flag Is Suggested For Canadians

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP)—Rev. Don McIvor (L., Ft. William) last night displayed in the Commons a flag which he suggested might be adopted as Canada's national flag.

The flag had nine horizontal red, white and blue stripes, one for each province. In the centre was a green maple leaf on which was superimposed the Canadian coat of arms.

Mr. McIvor said he had flown the flag over his home on "Victory Day."

HAS RIGHT TO FLAG

Canada had a right to her own flag and a right to make her own laws.

"We can rule ourselves better than any jurist from old London," said Mr. McIvor.

The boys who had gone overseas in this war did not have the same respect for England as did the last generation of men who had gone over.

"Some of our boys refused to salute some English officers and the officers referred to them as bleeding colonials," said Mr. McIvor. "We are not colonials and we have a right to our own flag."

'self-made man who had a poor teacher and was a worse student.'"

Plea to Pope To Stop Bombings

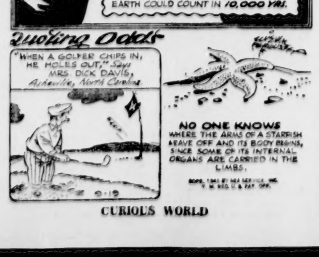

SEPT. 23.—"Guariglia (ambassador to the Vatican) has nothing new about Myron Taylor's (U.S. special envoy to the Holly See) trip. It is clear that they tell us at the Vatican only what they want us to know. The only interesting thing is that the Germans have asked the Pope to intervene to stop the bombing of German open cities. The word 'coventrize' was coined in Germany, as I recall!"

SEPT. 25.—"Alfieri (ambassador to Berlin), who approves it, sends a proposal from Berlin that we give Myron Taylor a "solemn booing." An insane thing to do. I can't say whether it is more ridiculous or disgusting."

Aims of Private Enterprise Are Criticized in Commons

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Private enterprise's only responsibility is to produce goods and to produce goods alone, W. F. Kuhl (SC, Jasper-Edson), said last night in the Commons.

"I deny that it is the responsibility to provide full employment," said Mr. Kuhl during continued throne speech debate.

The Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties had assumed that it was the responsibility of private enterprise to provide full employment. This assumption was wrong. Public enterprise as advocated by the CCF would not provide full employment.

CCF members who were farmers could not deny that they only hired men when they needed them. They did not hire them for the sake of providing employment.

WORRIED ABOUT INCOME

Mr. Kuhl said he was more worried about income for his constituents than jobs for them.

He suggested the establishment of a national balance sheet which would show the country's wealth on one side and the people's purchasing power on the other. He believed it would be shown that people were short 40 to 50 cents on the dollar.

National money should be issued to make up for the difference between production and buying power.

L. Menary (PC, Wellington North) said there was no shortage of cattle in Canada.

"I think the government should take these controls off," he said. "meet our commitments to Great Britain and then open the doors for Canadian capital into the United States market. We don't want this continued glut of cattle at the stock yards."

CALLS FOR BONUS

Stanley Knowles, (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) said he supported the suggestion that Canadians at Hong Kong be given any special rates of pay or bonuses which would have been paid to an Canadian force that were scheduled to go to the Pacific before the war ended.

Many of the men released at Hong Kong were from his constituency. Many were men who with their families had suffered hardships during the depression. He hoped parliament would make a vow that these men and their families would never be allowed to return to the tragic conditions of the thirties.

Mr. Knowles accused the government of having unjustified complacency. Only 39 per cent of the people of Canada voted for the Liberal party in the general election June 11. "Without giving the breakdown for the other groups, I say that 61 per cent of the people voted against the government," said Mr. Knowles, amid cries from government benches of "break them down."

"Only 10 per cent voted for the CCF," shouted Pro. Lt. James Sinclair (L-Vancouver North).

SOBERING THOUGHT

The fact 61 per cent of the people voted against the Liberals should be a sobering thought for the government, said Mr. Knowles.

In Western Canada 29 per cent voted for the Liberals and 71 per cent against.

This was no time for complacency on the part of the government. It was time for the government to settle down and to get down to the business of providing jobs.

Health Minister Claxton had stated in the commons that Canada would lead the world in social security. However, he noticed that all the government's social security plans were scheduled to come into effect only in 1948.

"Is that the year of the next election?" asked Mr. Knowles.

Mr. Claxton interjected that the plans were based on 1948 because that was believed to be the first year when reconversion would be fully effective. Also the plans could not be carried out until agreements had been reached with the provinces.

Mr. Knowles said 18 months ago the Winnipeg Free Press had ridiculed him for suggesting an old age pension plan that would cost $200,000,000.

RIDICULE BY PRESS

Now the government was coming forward with an old age pension plan that would cost $250,000,000. He hoped the Free Press would ridicule him again if it would mean that 18 months later there would be a further increase proposed in old age pensions.

Mr. Knowles said he did not believe that a public enterprise would be able to provide the homes needed in Canada and that public housing projects should be established.

He said the speech Reconstruction Minister Howe made in the Commons Monday night had sounded good but contained nothing specific. He hoped the minister had 1,000,000 jobs in sight, although 2,000,000 were needed.

Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia) said the government seemed determined "to follow the same old road in international finance which in the past has led us to dissension, depression and war."

WON'T CREATE MONEY

The government was prepared to create money for war but not prepared to do so for peace. Now there was not the excuse of external debt for maintaining a large favorable balance of trade. The effort should be to achieve an even balance of payments.

The Social Credit party believed there should be an immediate reduction in taxation, first on the low income groups by raising income exemptions and removing the sales tax. Taxation should be used not primarily to provide money for the government but to prevent inflation. To the extent that taxation did not meet government requirements money should be created.

"In so far as this group is concerned they will get no support from us," said Mr Quelch speaking of the Bretton Woods monetary agreements.

The agreements meant restoration of the gold standard. They were sure to create international dissension.

APPEASEMENT POLICY

"Nations agreeing to the Bretton Woods agreement are entering into a policy of appeasement," he said. "Surely the war has shown that appeasement does not pay. It is better to have a showdown at the start.

H. O. White (PC—Middlesex East) asked the house to "get back to earth occasionally" and take stock of the farming situation.

In 1866 Alexander Buntin installed at Valleyfield, Quebec, what is claimed to have been the first wood grinder in America.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

FINAL plans for the hockey school which opens at the Arena here next Monday were made by officials of the Canadian Athletic Club on Tuesday night and rink passes have been sent out to approximately 300 boys, of which 60 are juniors.

Coaching staff will consist of Tiny Thompson, chief scout for the Chicago Black Hawks; Art Wiebe and Bobby Carse, also former Hawks; Clarence Moher who handled last season's junior squad and Louis Holmes, ex-pro and Canadian juvenile mentor for 1944-45.

All excepting two (Jim Slugg and Don Campbell) of last year's juniors are expected to attend and in addition to the club's own juveniles moving up, the list will be augmented by players from many points in Alberta. Prince Albert and Lashburn in Saskatchewan and even Winnipeg will be represented. Jited Deer is the latest Alberta centre to report players coming in.

RILEY MULLIN NEW COACH!

IT COULD be Riley Mullin for the coaching job of Edmonton's entry in the recently organized Western Canada Inter-provincial Hockey League. An official announcement is expected from the Exhibition Association's hockey committee today.

Mullin played defence for Edmonton Flyers during the 1940-41 season, last year of senior hockey here and he was with the Red Deer Army Wheelers in the Alberta services loop two winters ago.

Following the organization meeting held in Calgary on Sept. 8, it was stated a second league session would be held in Calgary around Sept. 20-21 and at which final make-up of the circuit would be determined and decks cleared for opening on Nov. 10. The tentative schedule suggested in the event of four entries—Saskatoon, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton—consisted of 72 games.

Senators Keep Hopes Alive By Trimming Tigers 12-5

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—(AP)—Washington Senators pounded six assorted Detroit hurlers for a 12-5 victory in the series finale flickering and kept their American League pennant hopes flickering faintly.

The defeat reduced the Tigers' lead over the Senators to 1½ games as they boarded a train for the west where they will end up their campaign in eight games against Cleveland and St. Louis.

Yesterday's game found Manager Steve O'Neill's Athletes still were in the driver's seat. Even should the Senators win all their remaining five games in the series, the Tigers could assure themselves no worse than a tie by taking five of their eight.

The Senators fell on Paul (Dizzy) Trout for six hits and four runs in the first frame but settled down as the Tigers curving corps passed in brisk review. George Caster, against whom the locals set off another fourteen spurge in the seventh round, was charged with the defeat, and Dutch Leonard third of four Senator hurlers, gained his 17th win.

Real Fish Story!

By FRANK REICHSTEIN

BELOIT, Wis., Sept. 19.—Louis McIntyre went to Milwaukee, Wis., to develop the season's top fishing tale.

McIntyre, a Beloit policeman, returned with a 21½-pound muskellunge, which made him the proud possessor of one of the strangest trophies in the history of the piscatorial pastime. He wound up with two cases of beer.

"I was out on the lake in the morning, using a pike minnow bait in search of northerns," recounts McIntyre, "Suddenly there was a terrific tug on my line. The fish battled unlike any northern pike, so I knew I had a muskie.

"After fighting for 30 minutes, both fish and I were pretty tired. As I brought the catch up to the boat, it turned over on its back and I gaffed it. It was a beauty."

McIntyre made a beeline with his prize to a taxidermist in Mayfair, Wis., gave orders to have it mounted.

A day later he got a phone call from the stuffy, who babbled something about a bottle of beer. Regaining his power of speech, the taxidermist told McIntyre that the muskie's stomach contained a full-capped bottle of beer.

Examination revealed that it was an eight-ounce steinie bottle. The taxidermist estimated that the bottle had been swallowed, tap first, about three weeks before. His belief was confirmed by fishermen who lost a case overboard three weeks previously.

So the trophy possessor went back to a brewery in Rhinelander with the bottle. The brewers laughed and offered McIntyre two cases of their best beverage in exchange for the trophy. McIntyre accepted. With that name, you'd expect it.

The Beloit gentleman attempted to keep the thing hush-hush, but without much success. On-the-spot newsmen relayed the strange tale, and news items gave the thing an expected guffaw.

So truthful or not, Louis McIntyre probably will receive the annual Burlington Liar's Club award—and he'll have to travel only 75 miles to receive the beautiful bronze loving cup.

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP)—Short shots on sport: Coach Ross Trimble of Ottawa Rough Riders concedes he is generally satisfied with current rugby football rules but there's one ruling he'd like to eliminate—the single point for a kick to the deadline. Ross told Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick the play is unfair because the opposition has no defence against it and "any play for which there is no defence is not a good thing for any game as far as I am concerned." A kick to the deadline gave Winnipeg Blue Bombers a Grey Cup title against Rough Riders in 1939, it may be recalled, but Trimble claims he isn't prejudiced. A similar play in 1941 against Toronto Argonauts settled a close series in favor of Rough Riders.

Montreal sports-about-town have organized a cocktail lounge rejoicing in the name of "Chez When." Comments Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson: "A lot of guys, having quaffed too many, will be calling it 'Shay When.'"

Western Canada plans to make senior baseball a major organized sport seem to fall in the cards before-the-horse category—they already have a trophy for the championship of a Western Canada Baseball Association and now they're working to organize the association. The man behind the movement is Bill Hansen, former RCAF squadron leader who sparked revival of the game in Calgary a couple of years ago. As told by Tom (Calgary Albertan) Moore, Hansen has called a meeting for Sept 23 in Calgary to form a western association, with invitations mailed to baseball men in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Lethbridge.

When Hamilton Beavers walked off the field after playing nine scoreless innings against Toronto Tip Tops in an elimination series for the world's softball tournament at Cleveland, they gave the excuse that star pitcher Russ Johnson, a policeman off the diamond, had to leave to be on his beat the next day. Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve chuckled parentically: "After all, Dick Tracy can't look after everything."

Jimmy Cook is a candidate for an outside wing post with Toronto Argonauts of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union. He is also the son of William Oscar Billy Cook, former all-time great with New York Rangers. Bill says Jimmy "May be a good footballer, but he'll have to be good enough for pro hockey."

Mann Cup Finals Set For Vancouver

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP)—Ontario representative in the 1945 Mann Cup finals will leave Sept. 30 for Vancouver where the world series of lacrosse will be held this season, the Canadian Lacrosse Association announced last night.

St. Catharines Athletics, who defeated New Westminister Salmonbellies last year in a best-of-five Mann Cup series, now lead Brampton-Lakeshore Combines 2-1 in a best-of-seven Ontario elimination.

The Quebec Association has announced it will not send a representative against Athletics or Combines.

21 Saturday Tilts Billed For Toronto

MONTREAL, Sept. 19—(CP)—The National Hockey League Tuesday released its 1945-46 schedule, marked by the earliest start on record —Oct. 24—and by the prominence given to Wednesday night games.

The 150-game schedule, giving each team the usual 25 home games, starts with a single game Wednesday, Oct. 24—four days ahead of last year's opener—and runs through to Sunday, March 17, one day earlier than the final scheduled games of the previous year.

Chicago Black Hawks open the schedule at Boston in the first of 13 Wednesday night games allotted to the Bruins. In all, the schedule calls for 26 Wednesday games, compared with nine last season. Boston draws 12, Chicago eight, Canadiens and Toronto four each, and Rangers one.

Development of the Wednesday night games allows a trifle more leeway in the usually-crowded weekend picture, made necessary by travel difficulties. Most weekend changes are the elimination of most overnight hops from Montreal to New York Saturday night—due to cancellation of the late night train.

Canadiens and Maple Leafs open their seasons at home Saturday, Oct. 27, with the Montrealers playing hosts to Chicago and Toronto entertaining Boston. Boston moves on to Detroit in the schedule of the Red Wings the following night, and the Black Hawks make their home debut Wednesday, Oct. 28 against Rangers. The Rangers don't draw a home game until Nov. 8 when they take on Chicago at Madison Square Gardens.

Saturday night remains as hockey night in Toronto, with 21 home games on Saturdays.

Fastball Series Starts Tonight

Weather permitting, the opening game of a best-of-three series for the City Senior Girls' Fastball League playoffs will get underway at Kingsway Park tonight starting at 6.30 o'clock with the Army and Navy Belles meeting Walk-Rites. Mortons, who were just nosed out of the top position by the Pats, were forced to drop out due to the loss of several players, leaving the Walk-Rites and Pats to play-off for the title.

Koroway Shipped To Toronto Track

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP)—Koroway, the pride of Western Canada racing circles, arrived at Thorncliffe Park Tuesday to test gait and stamina in fall handicaps in Toronto's three remaining weeks of racing.

The five year old son of Khorasan, boasting eight victories, three seconds and three thirds in 15 starts this season and earnings in excess of $10,000, was included in an eight-horse consignment representing the K. and K. stable of Winnipeg.

Nineteen other thoroughbreds, including the handicap mare Teeworth owned by Ned Northwood of Stavely, Alta., also unloaded at Thorncliffe. K. Isamo, A. Revano, Nelson and H. Dykes and A. Wheelernall had horses in the shipment.

Eight other thoroughbreds arrived from Winnipeg Monday night.

Goldham Accepts Toronto Terms

TORONTO, Sept. 19—(CP)—Bob Goldham defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs in 1941-42, has accepted terms and will be one of seven or eight candidates for defence posts this season, coach Clarence (Happy) Day said last night.

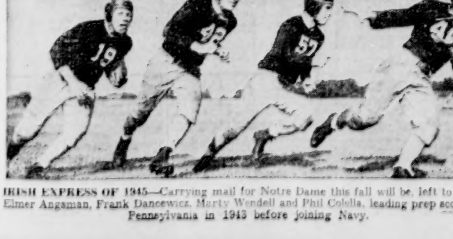

Goldham, who packs close to 200 pounds on a six-foot frame, was discharged by the navy this week. He played in the Halifax league last season.

Shooting Meet May Be Revived

BISLEY CAMP, Surrey, England, Sept. 19—(CP Cable)—Officials of the National Rifle Association hope to revive the Bisley annual shooting meet on a peacetime scale next summer, possibly in July.

They said Tuesday they plan to hold a meeting lasting one week instead of the one-day meeting last July and it is expected that prewar rules will be observed. The Bisley meet, in which crack marksmen from Canada and other parts of the commonwealth competed before the war, has been suspended since hostilities began.

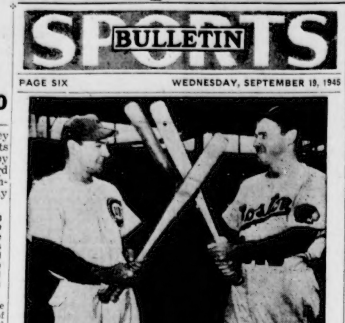

"We cannot give details yet," one official said, "and it is impossible to say whether it will be worth while for Canada to send teams."

Tommy Holmes Crowds Plate Seeking Hits in Batting Race

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Wielding one of Del Bissonette's old war clubs, Thomas Francis Holmes is racing Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs for the batting championship of both major leagues.

As a matter of fact, Tommy Holmes appears to be the sixth National Leaguer to show the way both in batting and home runs.

He is virtually a cinch to lead in total hits and runs scored, and has a fine chance of beating out Dixie Walker of the Dodgers in the important runs-batted-in department.

Yes, this is the same Holmes on whom the Yankees gave up after he had spent five years on their farm clubs.

With Newark for three years, Holmes was a good enough flychaser, but he was on the weak side for ground balls and had only a fair arm. Yet that wasn't why Ed Barrow and his advisors decided to sell the youngsters to the Braves.

While Holmes' batting average was high enough, he hit too straight away to suit the New York master minds. Obviously powerful, he stood at the plate like A. G. Spalding. There was only one thing for pitchers to do. It was not to let this left-hand hitter pull the ball.

So Holmes saw nothing but outside pitches. Because his stance prohibited his doing anything else, about all the Brooklyn product did was poke these pitches into left and left-centre. His hits rarely headed for the farthest points of the parks. And that was the story throughout his first two summers with the Bostons.

It was not until the summer of 1944 that Holmes mastered the art of pulling the ball to right field. By that transformed him first from a .270 hitter who drove in 41 runs into a .309 hitter who batted in 73, and now into a .349 hitter who has already manufactured 28 home runs and batted in 108 runs.

A corking pull hitter himself, Bissonette, who assumed the management of the Beantowners in mid-season, straightened Holmes out. Tommy could not have had a superior teacher.

Holmes is no longer a stationary hitter. He crowds the plate more than he did. He crouches a bit against certain pitchers, leans over and gets around outside pitches to club the ball into right field.

Professor Bissonette was a foxy hitter. Crouching low, he waved his bat around his knees menacingly. He looked like a hitter dying to get a ball, yet that was precisely what he disliked. He straightened up with pitches, socked high balls for all they were worth.

The pitchers never did get hep to Bissonette, although four or five years elapsed before injuries drove this consistent .320 clubber out of the big show.

Phil Cavarretta or Tommy Holmes. Dixie Walker need not feel bad about relinquishing the batting leadership.

This is the 20th consecutive year that the National League batting champion has failed to repeat.

One hasn't performed that feat since 1925, when the incomparable Rogers Hornsby finished weaving a skein of six.

Rain Fails Stop Juniors Workout

Despite heavy rain and wintry weather, over 20 young enthusiasts turned out for the junior football workout at Clarke Stadium last night. Practices will continue all this week, starting at 6.30 in the evening, and something regarding the opening game should be known in a day or two.

Although no definite date has been set, it is certain that a Calgary club will be up for a game with the locals sometime in the very near future. Word has been received from the Foothills city they will be able to bring a squad up here anytime, and the next move is up to the officials here.

Hampered by the shortage of equipment and other handicaps, within a week's time everything will be set for action to commence. According to George Snowdon, things are looking brighter every day. So it won't be long now, and Edmonton will be well represented with good junior football this year.

Indications from the turnouts at the practices are that this city will have one of the strongest junior clubs in years, that will be gunning for the provincial title by the time playoffs roll around.

New Regulatons For Servicemen

OTTAWA, Sept. 19—(CP)—An announcement is expected "within the next day or so" clarifying the status of service athletes competing with civilian teams, army public relations officers said last night.

Possible relaxation of the present regulations barring these men from civilian play was discussed at the regular meeting Tuesday of the adjutant generals' branch and a recommendation made to Defence Minister Abbott. Details of the recommendation were not disclosed.

The matter came up for discussion following Saturday's Ottawa-Toronto Ontario Rugby Football Union game here in which two Ottawa players who are in the RCAF were barred from playing because of the ruling. The Ottawa team claimed three airmen members of the Toronto squad were permitted to play.

Cards Turn Back Cubs 3-2 In First of Crucial Series

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19—(AP)—St. Louis Cardinals surged to within two games of the National League-leading Chicago Cubs last night as they nipped the Bruins, 3-2 before 22,174 fans in the opener of a three-game series.

Sturdy Charley (Red) Barrett, the unwanted Boston Braves' tosser, racked up his 22nd triumph of the season as he continued the amazing Cardinal jinx over the Cubs, who now have dropped 14 of 18 starts to the champions.

The triumph fanned the hopes of the Redbirds for a fourth straight pennant since both they and the Cubs still have 10 games to play. In grabbing his fourth decision over the Cubs against no defeats, Barrett scattered seven hits while the Cardinals jolted Claude Passeau for 10 and came from behind with a pair of runs in the fifth inning to clinch the victory.

Ross E. Cameron Named President Legion Bowlers

Ross E. Cameron was elected president of Canadian Legion Five-pin Bowling League at a meeting held on Tuesday night. Vice-president is William Chowne and Doris Lancaster was named secretary.

The league will commence the season's schedule at Recreation alleys on Thursday night at 8.45 o'clock.

Atomics, Spitfires, Trouble Shooters, Wings, Commandos, Rasdars, Blockbusters and Tanks are the eight teams in the loop.

Currie Army Nine To Play Winnipeg

CALGARY, Sept. 19—(CP)—President of the Foothills Baseball League, Bill Hansen, announced late last night that Currie Army of Calgary will compete with Winnipeg for the Seattle Rainier trophy, emblematic of the Western Canada senior championship in a best-of-seven game series starting here Friday night.

The playoff was previously cancelled but President Hansen has now come to satisfactory terms with the eastern team.

Opening game of the series will be played at Buffalo Stadium Friday night with the second Saturday night and a doubleheader Sunday.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings will be the dates for remaining games in the playoff that are necessary.

President Hansen also stated representatives from Calgary, Regina, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Lethbridge will meet Sunday here to make plans for the organization of the proposed western Canada senior baseball association for next year.

Soccer League Resumes Practice

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(CP Cable)—Football league authorities said Tuesday that incorporation of week-day games in this season's soccer schedule was in line with pre-war practice.

Explaining the fact that a number of games are being played during the week, as well as on Saturdays, officials said this was customary peacetime procedure, in order to get the beginning and end of the season. It was done to accommodate 42 fixtures for which there is room at week-ends.

The regional system of fixtures used during the war to obviate travelling for players has been modified but still is observed in principle.

The first peacetime season since the war began opened well on Aug. 25 with the first and second divisions drawing large crowds. But the third division was described by soccer experts as the "football cinderella."

The usual peacetime program of cup ties will be resumed but has not yet been started.

"Sentimental Reasons"

Copeland Switches to Argonauts

By ALAN HARVEY

TORONTO, Sept. 18—(CP)—The kid with the collar and profile switched club affiliation for "sentimental reasons" and the football stock of Toronto Argonauts boomed overnight.

Because he wanted to "stick with Tedder," triple-threat Royal Copeland shifted his gridiron gear to the double blue training camp where coach Ted (Tedder) Morris is grooming Argos for a return to bigtime competition after a three-year, war-enforced blackout.

Copeland, who practised more than a week with Toronto Indians of the Ontario Union before transferring to Argonauts, immediately became the key figure in a backfield shorn of the familiar names who made headlines monotonously as the scullers rolled to three Canadian crowns from 1933 to 1938.

WELCOME NEWS

His appearance was welcome news for Morris, fiery petty officer who built a 1944 championship contender at H.M.C.S. York around Able Seaman Copeland, rated football's most promising youngster since Tony Golab came out of Kennedy Collegiate at Windsor, Ont., eight years ago.

Morris, falling heir to strategist's mantle rellnquished by Lew Hayman who coached Argos when Tedder was one of the team's star plungers, plans to fit "Cope" into a half-line which includes D'Arcy (Curly) Hiltz, Toronto product who played for St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, Navy team last season, Billy Bell, Art Skidmore, Bob Curtin, Jim O'Brien and possibly Tommy Waldon from the Toronto Navy team, who will handle the team from quarterback post if he changes his mind about going to University of Toronto.

SHARES KICKING DUTIES

Bell and the left-footed Skidmore, former airman who is one of 26 service or ex-servicemen bidding for positions, shared kicking duties as Argos shafted Balmy Beach 30-0 in a tuneup for next Saturday's big four opening game against Rough Riders at Ottawa.

Morris has no worries about his wingline, spearheaded by veterans of championship Argo teams like Steve Levantis, Jack Wedley, Les Ascott, and Bill Zock. Levantis and Wedley helped lead St. Hyacinthe Montreal Navy Combines to a surprise Grey Cup victory last season over Hamilton Wildcats.

That year the Cubs won the flag with 89 and the Yanks turned in 99 victories . . . Detroit can't reach the 100-victory mark and may wind up as the American League's lowest-average

Before a recent navy ball game in Hawaii, the rival managers, former Tiger Schoolboy Rowe and Al Lyons, former Yankee rookie, met with the umps to discuss the ground rules. . . . "We know the ground rules all right, but we'll make 'em think we're having a big time up here," suggested Rowe. He pointed out toward right field and asked Lyons: "How many points you got, Al?"

"Oh, I'm short a few," Lyons replied, "but I hear you're planning to stay out this way."

"Stay here!" exclaimed Rowe. "Why, man, if there weren't some spots in that ocean that are over my head, I'd start walking right now."

Today's Sport Parade

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (BUP) — Overlooked while everyone is looking over the girdle-tight squeeze for pennants in the major leagues is another wide open battle, being waged today by a dozen or more red-hot candidates in each circuit for the most valuable player awards.

We believe if a player actually is "most valuable" in the league his talents would be sufficiently brilliant to bring that team the penant. Hence our choices are a pair of aces from those impending championship outfits of 1945 namely; first baseman Phil Cavaretta of the Chicago Cubs, and second baseman Eddie Mayo of Detroit Tigers.

These selections may bring a storm of protest from the boisterous Bostonians, for example, who may fail to understand how Tommy Holmes—who already has won the 1946 Packard automobile for his efforts with the Braves—can be by-passed.

Holmes happened to be pacing the majors with 28 home runs, 210 hits, 121 runs. Also he was second in the National circuit with a batting mark of .349.

Actually there aren't many more departments in which Holmes could excell. But we feel that the shiny sedan he got from Boston fandom is enough, considering that the Cape Cod cluobers are a sorry lot in the National League standings — just 28½ games behind the boys.

Cavaretta, now rounding out his 12th season with the pennant-bound Bruins, sports the league's fattest batting mark, .354, which is 37 points higher than that prevailing in the USA. He is described by his teammates as a ball player's ball-player—a strategist, quick thinker and a sure and rangy fielder.

Hal Newhouser, Detroit pitching ace and the strikeout artist of the majors has two strikes on himself because he was the winner last year. Moreover, infirmities which reduced his efficiency on the recent all-important return trip, projected his mound-mate Paul (Dizzy) Trout into the picture as the Tiger "clutch" pitcher with five victories since the Bengals left home. Trout's season record is less impressive (18 wins and 15 losses) than Newhouser's 22 and 9. But right now he is the better pitcher.

It might be well for the selection committee of baseball writers to institute a separate award this season only for outstanding returning service men—who came into the campaign late but who have performed heroically since then—like Keller, Ferriss, Burkhardt, etc.

Unknown Captures Jerome Handicap

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The race that was supposed to settle the championship of the three-year-old racing colts—the ancient Jerome Handicap—wound up Tuesday in a great big mud bath at Belmont Park.

The late-arriving Buzfuz came splashing home to stake out his own claim to the crown, while the "hot" horses of the current year slid along far up the track.

The Preakness winner, Polynesian, was in this field. So was Pavot, who took the Belmont, and Pot O'Luck, who picked up the pot in the Arlington Classic, and Jeep, who won the Wood Memorial. With the Derby hero, Hoop Jr., on the shelf, this mile event was supposed to be a cake-walk for one of them, and with it, the top spot among the colts who have come of age.

But not one of them was even close.

Jockeys Threaten Strike At Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A strike threat by jockeys may cause a shutdown of Chicago's Hawthorne race track and Fairmont Park at Collinsville, Ill., today because of the refusal of the Illinois Racing Board to grant a riding license to a 22-year-old jockey, Wendell Eads.

The strike threat, involving about 30 riders at Hawthorne and 20 at Fairmont Park, was made by John P. Kelly, general manager of the Jockeys' Community Fund and Guild who declared that the guild is "outraged over the manner and method of the hearing given Eads in his application for a licence."

Kelly claims the Guild has a membership of 96 per cent of the country's race riders.

Louis To Referee Billy Conn's Bout

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Joe Louis and Billy Conn will meet in the ring here tonight—but Louis will referee while Conn boxes in a three-round exhibition.

Col. Harry Riley, commander of Camp Shanks, N.Y., advised that, in deference to the champion's wishes, he will not box a planned three-round exhibition. Instead, he will referee an exhibition between Conn and Dave Patterson, local heavyweight.

Trio Is Cleared On Hold-Up Count

MONTREAL, Sept. 19—(CP)—Capt. Wilfrid Bourdon, head of the Montreal police holdup squad, said yesterday that police here had established that Ulysses Lauzon, his 20-year-old wife Eileen, and Walter Koresky of Windsor, Ont., had "nothing to do with a $17,000 department store holdup here three weeks ago.

Edmonton-Born Officer Retires

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—A brigadier at 30, John D. Christian, OBE, of Edmonton and Ottawa is retiring from the Canadian active army at his own request, defence headquarters announced yesterday. He was 31 today.

Brig. Christian enlisted in 1939 as a lieutenant with the Royal Canadian Engineers, leaving a position in Kirkland Lake, Ont., as a civil engineer. A native of Edmonton, he received his education in Toronto and London, Ont., and graduated from Royal Military College in 1935.

He commanded an engineer formation in the 5th (armored) division in the Italian campaign.

Army Scales Down Orders For Goods

OTTAWA, Sept. 19. — (CP) — Further cuts in contracts for military supplies have been effected by army ordnance, Defence Minister Abbott announced yesterday in a statement disclosing future requirements of army boots now have been reduced by 100,000 pairs. The minister's statement said there had been similar reductions in other items no longer required in wartime quantities. Mr. Abbott's announcement followed a recent statement on large-scale service reductions in orders for textile products.

It was not known here what Brig. Christian would do in civilian life.

Heavy Purchases Of Chicago Grains

CHICAGO, Sept. 19—(AP)—Heavy buying pushed wheat and rye futures up more than 2 cents a bushel at times today to new seasonal highs for the September and December deliveries.

Profit-taking depressed both grains near the close, although wheat held up fairly well in most cases.

Wheat closed ⅛ lower to 1½ cents higher than the previous finish, corn was up ⅛ to ½, oats were unchanged to ⅝ higher, rye was ⅞ down to 1¼ up, and barley was unchanged to ⅛ higher.

Cash wheat, No. 2 mixed 1.73¾; corn, sample grade yellow, 1.15-40; oats, No. 1 mixed extra heavy, 67½; barley, normal, malting 1.21-1.39½, feed 95-1.20.

CREAM PRICES

Prices for cream delivered to Edmonton creameries: Special grade, 42; No. 1, 40; No. 2, 35; off grade, 30.

All prices include government bonus of 10c to farmers.

EGG PRICES

Dealers now paying to country shippers: A large, 36; A medium, 34; A pullet, 28; grade B, 24; grade C, 18.

Retail to consumers: A large, 49; A medium, 47; A pullet, 41; grade B, 38; grade C, 30.

The most important development on this egg market during the past week has been the commencement of operations in the movement of eggs stored under contract for fall shipment overseas, with three cars moving to seaboard this week. The general quality of these eggs has been turning out exceptionally well from storage. Current receipts as reported by registered stations in this district show a decrease of 13 per cent. from the preceding week. The general quality is rapidly improving, due to cooler weather and increase in pullet production. The percentage of grade A for the current week is 48.7 per cent. compared to 41.4 per cent. for the previous week. The market generally is strong to firm on all grades, but a slight weakness is shown on grade A, due to the trend of the eastern market. At the present time there is a slight surplus of grade A over and above local requirements. However, the opening up of export movement for these grades will relieve any congestion in any increase in production. Surplus grade B eggs are going through Special Products Board channels for immediate drying, with six lots being delivered this week. Two carlots of grade C rolled to Winnipeg and this market is practically cleaned out on this grade at the present time.

POULTRY PRICES

The live poultry market is becoming slightly inactive, due possibly to harvest operations. Total poultry delivered to processing plants during the week was 192,711, a decrease of 10 per cent. from the previous week. The general quality of fowl is good and constitutes about 65 per cent. of total deliveries. The quality of chicken to date shows lack of proper fattening by producers. Consequently, percentage of milk-fed is low. Shipments of dressed poultry consisted of one carlot exported to the United States and one car of frozen poultry to Vancouver.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Sept. 19—(Reuters)—The stock market was quiet today with occasional recessions noted among the leaders.

Gilt edges, however, continued to meet investment support, reflecting the prospects of cheaper money and lower rates of interest.

European bonds were quiet while Japanese issues generally were ¼ higher after their recent dullness.

British rails were dull, with some off 1½, while foreign rails remained quietly steady.

Little interest was displayed in industrials which showed small mixed changes at the close.

Oils attracted little attention and made only slight fractional changes.

International dollar stocks ruled firm in unison with higher over-night New York advices. Brazilian Tractions and International Nickel each gained ⅛.

Premier Stalin In Poor Health

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Yves Delbars said in a copyright article yesterday in the newspaper Paris-Presse without specifying any source that Premier Stalin was likely to retire from "all active and direct participation" in the Soviet government this winter owing to ill health. Delbars, known in Paris newspaper circles as a specialist in Russian affairs, said the 66-year-old Stalin was suffering from a liver ailment in conjunction with fatigue, and that the ailment became serious as far back as 1942, during the crucial battle for Stalingrad.

The ROAD AHEAD

by Capt. HARPER PROWSE, M.L.A.

EVER since the government moved into the renting picture and froze evictions there have been howls of protest mixed with the chorties of glee. And while it is impossible to weigh the full effects of the order there is no doubt that it has worked an injustice in some cases on some individuals—just as it has proved a lifesaver to others. Of course, in my job, I hear all the complaints, while those who have no complaint aren't making any fuss.

My mail last week brought me a letter from a representative of one of the landowners' organizations pointing out their side of the problem. Here is part of it:

"I have had plenty of experience with renting and dealing with the rental board and also I am determined to get out of the business of renting under present Dominion Government Gestapo and Hitlerian laws as soon as possible as are thousands of other property owners across Canada. You would want to get out of it too if you were in it, but being an outsider you do not know what any of us have to put up with until you get an opportunist tenant who wants to make trouble.

"Many in the armed services are also responsible for many people getting out of the business of renting—they have even organized at some of the barracks and stations to make trouble and it is no wonder there is no housing for veterans coming back, and justifiably so.

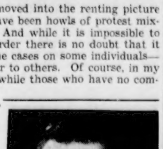

BUILD OWN HOUSES

"Let them build their own houses and pay taxes and all the other expenses connected with running a house and in addition stand up to the laws made against them, and let their grousing fall on deaf ears for years on end—then they will have more sympathy for the property owner."

He also tells his personal experience:

"I had a 5-room bungalow reduced from $27.00 per month to $12.00 per month by the rental board in 1942 and it is still being rented to the same soldiers' wife with two kids at the same rent. Would you blame me for getting out of the business or selling the place? Should I rent it to a veteran?"

Well, maybe I don't know anything about opportunist tenants—but I have had some considerable experience with opportunist landlords in my time! I have a lot of sympathy for people who bought houses in good faith hoping to get early possession, but who are now unable to get possession because of the freezing order. I have a lot of sympathy for people who have to live in rented houses because they can't get into homes they own, or that their parents have bought for them to occupy.

I SAW TODAY.—Gordon A. Owen giving his views on topics of the times to a friend on Jasper;

AND

Alfred Jackson munching a wartime chocolate bar on 106 street; Murray Stewart on the South Side; Billy Brazil observing traffic signals at Jasper and 101 street; Stew Graham heading for the centre of the city from the Highlands; Dr. Fred Conroy taking time off for a cup of coffee in the Tegler Building coffee shop; C. E. McManus on 100 avenue.

But I am not going to waste any tears on any landlord who states he has had a lot of trouble with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and who was forced to reduce his rent by more than one-half—for the wife of a man serving overseas. From everything I have heard about the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and from everything I know about approved rentals, it is quite obvious that the same Wartime Prices and Trade Board aren't getting rents low that any landlord has to operate at a loss!

Just take a look at the classified ads in any newspaper any evening, or just take a look at the signs displayed in any real estate dealer's windows. You'll find offers of property for sale—with statements as to the income from the property. You'll find that the income is sufficient to return the capital in from four to ten years, and the average return offered is 15 per cent on the investment.

REFUSAL TO PAY BONUS

I know, too, that any landlord who has an "obnoxious" tenant can get an immediate eviction order from the Rental Controller provided he can show that the "obnoxiousness" is really obnoxiousness, not, for example, just a refusal to pay a "bonus" over and above the rent, in cash, to the landlord.

I know that what is bothering most landlords is that the government has properly stepped in and prevented them from making a killing out of the circumstances which have resulted from the war. And I know that there are a whole lot of landlords who aren't complaining one bit, and who do manage to get along in harmony with their tenants because they treat them decently.

So, mister, you just send the other carbon copy of your letter to somebody else you think might be a sucker for your sob story. It's people like you who make servicemen mad. You, and those of your pals who want to know if a man has any children when they ask if you have an apartment to rent. Somehow, I don't think anybody's heart will be broken if you do get out of the renting business.

City Merchants Favor Control Credit Buying

Eighty-nine per cent of Edmonton's retail merchants are in favor of maintaining some form of control over instalment selling and charge accounts, with a majority of this percentage favoring continuous revision as conditions warrant from time to time, Reg. T. Rose, secretary-manager, Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, announced Wednesday.

In the survey of city merchants made by the chamber, 11 per cent expressed their desire for complete elimination of the present controls, said Mr. Rose.

OPINION SOUGHT

The survey was made following a Dominion-wide request by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to sample the opinion of marchants on the issuing of credit and charge accounts.

Wartime controls over this form of merchandising were first introduced as an emergency measure in October, 1941, when the majority of cases required the purchaser to pay one-third cash and the remainder in six to 18 months. Purpose of the controls was to reduce the volume of civilian spending on many items considered essential for war purposes, and to release channels for the manufacture of war supplies.

Mr. Rose stated his organization was making a study of consumer reaction to the maintenance or abandonment of controls, now that hostilities had ceased and manufacturers were in a position to turn their plants to peacetime needs.

FREEZE' ALTERNATIVE TO MEAT RATIONING

If the government's meat rationing scheme, being so vigorously opposed by the Edmonton and other meat retailers, fails, the government will be forced to "freeze" meat at wholesale levels and to abandon the principle of equal distribution, H. W. Hammond, meat officer for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board told a representative meeting of women here on Tuesday.

The meeting had been called by the consumer branch of the board under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Conroy and included representative householders from such organizations as the Women's Canadian Club, the Red Cross Society, Catholic Women's League and a number of the French-Canadian and Ukrainian societies.

Mr. Hammond told the meeting that many Edmonton butchers had expressed themselves as prepared to support the rationing program.

Some had devised a scale system which figures price and coupon and token value at one operation and had found that the task of making the necessary computations was thus greatly simplified.

The meeting expressed its support of the principles of meat rationing.

THE QUESTION

What is your opinion of the results of the provincial refunding plan so far?

THE ANSWERS

JAMES FINLAYSON, accountant: I think that the response of bondholders to date is a sure indication of the soundness of the plan.

HAROLD HIBBERT, mechanic: I am not an authority on finance, but I am confident that when government, financial interests and private bondholders can agree that the plan must have merit.

TOM GORDON, traveller: There is no doubt that the plan is sound and the approval of all parties concerned is proof of its merit.

HERE'S A "QUINT" OF REAL MERIT—Among the many exhibits of Mother Earth's treasures on display in the Edmonton Chamber of Mines, from point of novelty perhaps none is more interesting than the above ambitious Netted Gem potato displaying five bulbous protuberances. It came from the garden of L. E. Drummond, secretary-manager of the Edmonton and Northern Alberta Chamber of Mines and Resources. With many years experience in unearthing valuable mineral deposits, Mr. Drummond believes these spuds were trying to steal the show for the vegetable kingdom. Another four-protuberance potato was found in the same hill. The potato shown above weighs two pounds; is nine and three-quarters inches long; nine and one-quarter inches wide.

British-Made Aircraft Soon On Sale Here

Commercial aircraft manufactured in Britain probably will be on the market in Edmonton and throughout the Dominion before the end of this year, according to J. F. Carroll, Luton, Bedfordshire, who is in Edmonton making a preliminary survey of potential markets.

He said that the Percival Proctor, a four-seater machine, with a cruising speed of 140 miles-an-hour, will be placed on the Canadian market. The aircraft is well-known to many Canadians in the armed forces, who used it for communications work in Britain during the war, Mr. Carroll stated. It is powered by a Gypsy six cylinder engine, and is a light craft with a range of 500 miles.

The airplane is manufactured by the Percival Aircraft Co., a subsidiary of the Hunting Aviation Co. Ltd.

TO SHIP PARTS

The airplane will be shipped to central points in Canada for assembly and distribution, and it is possible that parts for western distribution will be shipped by way of the Panama Canal to Vancouver, he stated.

He said that late next year an all-metal, two-engine airplane will be placed on the Canadian market. This is the "Merganser" with an over-all weight of 6,500 pounds and a cruising speed of 165 miles an hour.

J. L. Smith, secretary of the company, will arrive here in about two weeks to make further arrangements concerning the company's marketing outlets in the Dominion.

Hunting Party From U.S. Here

Making their second trip into Canada's northland in search of big game, a party of three American business men arrived in Edmonton Wednesday on their way to the hunting fields.

They are Maurice S. Miller, Chicago; Dr. Mario Lopez, Patterson, La., and G. Burton Davy, Boston, Mass. All three hunters passed through Edmonton last year on their journey north, and returned with a large bag of sheep, goat and moose. This year they are trying for a grizzly bear and caribou.

The party will travel by air through to Beaverlodge, and will separate there, Mr. Miller and Mr. Davy travelling to Porcupine Lake to at the headwaters of the Porcupine river, while Dr. Lopez will go to Wapata in British Columbia.

City to Calgary Sleepers Are "Off"

Indefinite withdrawal of sleeping car accommodation on the CPR between Edmonton and Calgary after Saturday, Sept. 22 has been made necessary due to heavy movements across Canada of returning service personnel, W. L. Mitchell, city passenger agent stated Wednesday.

Many thousands of troops are expected to dock at the east coast toward the end of the month, and sleepers were being pulled to regular runs in order to take care of the increased load, said Mr. Mitchell.

No date was set for the resumption of service but every effort would be made to do so at the earliest possible moment. Last sleepers to Calgary leave Saturday, Sept. 22, Mr. Mitchell stated.

Varsity Officials End Registrations For Current Week

Registration at the University of Alberta is officially over for this week, university officials said on Wednesday.

The only registrations taken on Monday and Tuesday were under the war emergency measure in the faculty of education for which there were 124 applicants.

This is the first time registrations have been accepted in this manner and university officials say it is too early to comment on the success of the new departure in the listing of the names.

Withdraw Charge Of Shopbreaking

A charge of shopbreaking against Joseph E. F. LaRose of Edmonton was withdrawn after a hearing in city police court Tuesday afternoon.

LaRose was alleged to have entered a beauty parlor at Fort Saskatchewan during the absence of the proprietress, Miss Della Rogers, and taken $214 in bills from a purse, and to have taken a watch from the premises of an adjoining barber shop, operated by F. J. Collins.

The two-and-a-half-hour hearing wound up after the testimony of RCMP, the beauty parlor and barber shop managers, and the Edmonton couple who accompanied LaRose to the Fort last July 14 when the offence was supposed to have occurred, and others.

Conciliation Board Not Yet Requested

Hon. C. E. Gerhart minister of municipal affairs, said today the Alberta government has not been approached by union bricklayers on strike here since Sept. 1 nor the Edmonton Builders' Exchange, with which the union has its working agreement, to set up a board of conciliation.

Commenting on an Ottawa report quoting Labor Minister Mitchell as saying in the Commons the strike is a matter for the provincial government, Mr. Gerhart said the government's policy is to set up such a board only at the request of either employees or employers. "So far we have received no application for such a board."

Meanwhile, a hearing into the dispute involving 41 bricklayers will be held here Wednesday before the regional war labor board.

Ask Immediate Start on Rural Electrification

Immediate start of rural electrification in Alberta under control of the provincial power commission was urged in a joint statement issued here today by the Alberta Farmers' Union and the United Farmers of Alberta.

The statement, issued after a meeting of the UFA and AFU held late last week, said it was felt a policy should be developed that will result in the maximum service to the rural people. The provincial power commission "should explore all avenues to ensure that service rights shall remain in the control of the people".

URGE NO MONOPOLY

"The statement added: "Certain test areas have been set up in the province to supply electrical power to rural areas by at least one private company and we urge that as monopoly be granted to this or any other private company which would prevent the announced policy of the Alberta government being put into effect which should ensure a distribution system at a lower figure than at present. Company with monopoly rights would supply".

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Women Should Lighten Woes of Vets' Mates

Imported Brides Are Going Through the World's Greatest Orgy of Homesickness; Many a Young Wife Sheds Tears Over Marriage Certificate

There has been a tearing of hair and gnashing of teeth among the girls of our own fair land when they have learned about the thousands upon thousands of stalwart American lads who have taken unto themselves wives in the foreign countries in which they have been billeted. They naturally feel that they have been robbed of God's best gift to woman, a good American husband, but they may, at least, take a bitter satisfaction in knowing that the matrimonial situation isn't all pie for the husband-snatchers, either.

For from the innumerable tear-sodden letters that come to this column, it appears that the international marriage, which was seldom a success even in the lush days when foreign titles were exchanged for good U.S. cash, is running true to form in humbler circles, and that the imported brides are going through the world's greatest orgy of homesickness.

SAD PLIGHT

And as a result many a GI Joe is wondering what made him do it, and many a young wife is blotting her marriage certificate with her tears. And this is no reflection on either the party of the first part or the party of the second part. It is just that love and romance are one thing, and that your own tastes and habits are another thing, and that it is almost impossible to mix them.

It is easy to understand the why of these marriages. Any skirt looked good to the lads fed up on gazing upon nothing but uniforms, and a boy could think himself in love with any girl who looked kissable. Besides, the strange woman has always had an irresistible lure for the masculine sex. Also, it is easy to see why any good-looking youth appeared the answer to a maiden's prayer in a land that the war had left virtually an Adamless Eden. Add to this a whirwind courtship to which the girl was not accustomed and the picture the boy painted of his hometown as an earthly paradise, and it is not amazing that Matilda or Yvonne on Carmen, or whatever her name was rushed to the altar with him.

Now very few weddings come up to expectations, so just how devastating has been the illusion of these wives from overseas. Nothing is as they expected it to be. Main street isn't Broadway. Joe isn't a millionaire. He is one of a million men hunting a job. They haven't been received with glad acclaim by their husbands' families. They are looked upon with suspicion as foreigners, with queer ways.

Often they don't speak the same language. They don't understand the manners and the customs. They don't know how to cook like there husbands' mother. They have nobody to visit, with. They are strangers in a strange land, than which there is no greater desolation.

Even their husbands are changed. They are no longer lovers. They are just married men. They have dumped there wives down into an alien environment, and they expect them to be happy and satisfied, and to know by intuition all the local folkways and the rules into good graces of the community.

And when the poor bride, who is bewildered and confused and lonesome and miserable, weeps for Mother and the girls, who are thousands of miles away, and who is hungry for the food and the foods and pines for the amusements she was accustomed to, her husband is selfishly annoyed with her. He is just irritated with her for being different.

Of course, in time these brides will adjust themselves to their new lives, but in the meantime they are going through a purgatory, and one that we sister women should lighten by holding out the hand of friendship to GI Joe's foreign wife.

Claim Support For Meat Ration

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)—Pride in Canadian women who, through many of their national organizations, have assured the Prices Board they will back up meat rationing, was expressed yesterday by Byron Hogg Sanders, director of the board's consumer branch, at a press conference.

"We have had messages from 25 women's organizations across the country offering support, some also offering suggestions about rationing," he said. "It is a magnificent show on the part of the women."

Asked to comment on a Canadian Press report of a protest by the Brantford, Ont., board of trade demanding that cooked and fancy meats be removed from the ration list, Mac Sanders said: "They don't seem to realize that the inclusion of cooked and fancy meats makes it possible to achieve our aim of reduced consumption. They are still thinking in terms of the first rationing."

THESE NEVER DID MAKE THE GRADE—Memo to Canadian servicemen in the Pacific. Relax, fellows. Those jungle coiffeurs never did make the grade. According to Canadian hairdressers, girl friends and wives aren't keen about those Burmese bumps and spiral slipknots you disliked. "Hollywood is still the big influence," one expert stated. "Soft, romantic waves—the glamour stuff—that's our stock in trade." "Canadian girls are just a little conservative," another beautician said. "We haven't had one customer ask for native imitations." Casual hair-do's, going under titles such as "neat slants" "romantic height" or "top lock curls," are most popular with the young set. Curls are strictly passe.

McCoy Health Service

The French artichoke, which is the immature bud of a plant of the thistle family, offers a very pleasant change. The size of this edible bud varies from 2 or 3 inches in diameter in ordinary market varieties.

The edible part of the vegetable consists of the fleshy portion at the base of the bud scales. The green scales of the bud are sometimes tinged with blue, brown or violet in color.

In North America the artichoke is generally prepared by steaming or boiling. Even though it is sometimes impossible to obtain the fresh artichoke in some of the colder climates, this vegetable may still be enjoyed by using the canned product. The smaller artichokes are selected for canning, after the inedible parts have been discarded. Whether canned or fresh, this vegetable is very wholesome.

The correct method of eating the whole artichoke is more confusing to the novice than eating asparagus. The proper way to eat it is to hold the upper portion of the artichoke with the left hand, and then with the fingers of the right hand, to pluck off an outer leaf. The thick part of the leaf at the bottom is then dipped into butter and slowly drawn between the teeth, leaving the soft edible part in the mouth. The remainder of the leaf is discarded.

After all the outer leaves have been removed, the bottom will remain. The fuzzy part should be thrown away, and the very tender base may be seasoned with butter and eaten with a fork.

Following are some methods of preparing this vegetable:

STEAMED ARTICHOKE

In cooking vessel with a tightly fitted lid, place the artichokes stem down in about two cups of water. Boil until a fork will easily penetrate the base. Remove from the fire and place the artichokes upside down to drain before serving. Serve with butter.

ARTICHOKE SALAD

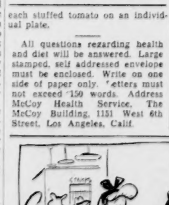

Use the cold artichokes which have been steamed or cut the cooked variety. In the canned ones the outer leaves will have been discarded, leaving the artichoke heart but in those cooked at home it is first necessary to take off these outer leaves. Chop up the hearts and mix with equal amounts of grated carrots, finally shredded lettuce and tomato pulp. You may secure the tomato pulp either by removing it from the shell of the fresh tomato, or by using the canned tomatoes. Add a small amount of olive oil as a dressing and serve on individual plates. Or, if you are using the fresh tomatoes, fill the shells with this mixture and serve against the five-diamond bid. In every case East overcalled with five hearts.

South, having bid five, decided he might as well go to six diamonds, and East was stuck; he could not bid his six spades.

East should have overcalled the five-diamond bid with five spades. Then when South bid six diamonds, West would bid six spades, or failing this, East would still be in a position to show his second suit by bidding five hearts and giving his partner a choice at the six level.

On this particular hand, if East had bid five spades, West quickly would have bid six. I doubt that it would be possible to get into seven spades unless South bid seven diamonds. Nevertheless, seven spades is a cold. A diamond opening is won with dummy's ace, while a club opening is ruffed. The heart finesse should not be taken. The second heart lead drops the king and the hand can be spread.

Dumb-Bells

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

THESE WOMEN—"My goodness! Who'd want HIM?"

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

All parents want their children to be polite, gracious and mannerly. But a too obvious attempt to inculcate manners makes the child obstinate and resist these efforts stubbornly.

Working in the parents' favor in the fulfillment of their desires, is the child's equally natural tendency to imitate them. Parents know well that their worst, as well as their best behavior is apt to be imitated with humiliating or gratifying acturateness.

Older persons, with a kind desire to make others comfortable and happy, may act mannerly without knowing any of the rules of etiquet. but children are too selfish and self-centered and have to be taught the words, even if at first all they do is to imitate them parrot-like.

Many of the mannerly phrases which are said so glibly are completely stereotyped. "I'm happy to meet you," "Let me express my sympathy," "Thank you so very much," "Please let me help you," and on and on. Children will imitate these phrases if they hear them repeatedly until the time when age and understanding of the emotions they are expressing make it possible for them to coach them in their own words.

So it remains for parents to illustrate daily to the child what well-mannered persons say and do in any situation.

Then the thank yous come naturally when a gift or a favor has been received, because the child has always heard the parents say thank you in similar situations. Then the mother will not have to say, "Don't you know you're to say to Mrs. Beams when she gives you a present?"

Emotion and excitement are apt to deprive the child temporarily of his learned manners so if Ellen does not speak up her mother may say, "I know Ellen will enjoy this and she'll tell you so later."

On the contrary if we humiliate the child and say, "You can't have this until you say thank you," we make manners so disagreeable that a child becomes rude and ungracious just to express her disapproval of our demands.

Mrs. F.: You may have a list of children's names for the usual self-addressed, stamped envelope and a request for it.

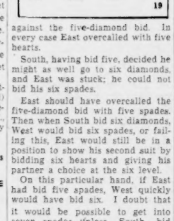

Our leaflet, "Good Manners," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Debunker

Because the slightest injury to the skin is painful, a notion has arisen that the deeper the wound the spades is to gain. This is quite far from the truth, for the great number of nerve endings in the skin make it the most sensitive part of the body, and as a wound goes deeper, it does not give as much pain as when it passed through the skin. Those who have had hypodermic needles thrust through their dermis know that the pain is chiefly as the needle pierces the skin, and not as it proceeds deeper into the muscle beneath.

Canadian Crime Not in Upsurge

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18—(CP)—Contrary to current belief that crime in Canada is on the upsurge, Supt. John D. Bird, new replacement at the RCMP office here, said yesterday "the situation seems normal."

"I think the reason there seems to be more crime since the war ended," Supt. Bird continued, "is that newspapers are giving more local events bigger headlines than they could during the war."

Bird, a native of Fredericton, has served with the RCMP criminal investigation bureau in Moncton, Ottawa, Vegreville, Alta., and Edmonton.

Another staff replacement here is Inspector C. W. Harvison, specialist in anti-sabotage, who comes to Winnipeg from Montreal.

Points for Parents

Mother: "Today we don't have to hurry, so you may look in the windows."

Daughter: "And some other day when you have to get home, I won't stop to look at them."

Mother: "Come on, now! Mother's in a hurry. You can't stop to look at everything."

Daughter: "You never let me! Stop—you're hurting my arm! I want to see this!"

Having occasional unhurried shopping trips may make the small window-shopper more willing to co-operate when loitering is not possible.

AFU Official Blames Ottawa For Rationing

The charge that the threatened shortage of meat which brought about meat rationing is a direct result of the short-sighted policy of Dominion government toward hog production was made by the Alberta Farmers' Union secretary, H. E. Nichols, in a statement issued Wednesday.

He said that had the necessary increase in price requested by the AFU and other producer organizations been granted no reduction in hog production would have taken place in Alberta and greater supplies of bacon would have been available for export to Britain and the peoples of other nations.

"In our view a policy of strong encouragement for increased meat production is required, and if this is done rationing soon will be unnecessary," Mr. Nichols stated. "Hog production in Alberta has been reduced 35 per cent because sufficient encouragement was not given."

PLENTY OF CATTLE

He said that at present Canada has plenty of cattle, and the best we must be made of these if we are to get the maximum amount of beef from them.

If rationing results in less demand and causes unfinished cattle to be sold at sacrifice prices, the final result will be a reduction in cattle herds, Mr. Nichols stated. This will necessitate even more severe meat rationing next year.

He said the government should make feed available in districts where feed is scarce so that cattle can be fed to produce every pound of beef which can economically possible.

The government should guarantee a profitable price to farmers, and the market should be supported by the Dominion meat board when farmers are forced to sell. Otherwise if prices fall unduly because of lack of buying, a reduction in cattle population is bound to follow, Mr. Nichols stated.

MAY BE LIQUIDATION

"If the same policy is followed in the case of cattle as was followed in that of hogs, there will likely be a tremendous liquidation this year and shorter supplies will be available in the future and will result in continuous rationing together with the impossibility of supplying the meat needed for the hungry peoples of the world, he said.

He contended that the present policy of rationing would tend to restrict meat production, adding that the solution to the problem is the encouraging of plentiful production to make rationing unnecessary.

V

Women's Groups Say Rationing Approved

Local consumer reaction to meat rationing and its problems are reflected in a survey conducted by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board among leaders of various women's organizations in city and country.

The national organization of the IODE has sent a wire pledging support of the program to government authorities at Ottawa, and the provincial president of the group, Mrs. R. C. Marshall has expressed her opinion that the provincial chapters will be "behind the national organization."

"Consumers have not criticized the imposition of meat rationing very much," Mrs. E. E. Morton, Vegreville, president of the Alberta Women's Institute, said. "If meat rationing is necessary, and it would not be imposed unless it was, so far as the women in the WI are concerned, it will be accepted."

Mrs. Frank Conroy of Edmonton, head of the volunteer consumer board which advises rationing authorities on public reaction to its policies, says that none of the 1,000 representative Alberta women with whom the consumer body is in touch have expressed serious disapproval of meat rationing.

Church Plans For Reception Of Moderator

Careful plans are being made by United Church leaders in Edmonton for the approaching official visit of the Moderator, the Right Reverend Jesse H. Arnup, on Sept. 26, 27 and 28. Public meetings and conferences will be held in McDougall church during those three days, and Dr. Arnup will have the assistance of the Rev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor of Toronto.

Attention will be focussed on the "Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom" a two-year spiritual program on which the United Church is now launched. This Crusade is the church's response to the needs and challenges of a post-war world.

It will emphasize the re-dedication of the fellowship of the church of those men and women whose lives have been disrupted through battle service or war industry. It will seek to capture the enthusiasm and daring of a new generation of young people to the ideals of the Christian life.

It will involve visitation-evangelism, preaching missions and church membership classes in a far-flung effort to "reach the unreached." It will endeavor to bring Christian principles to bear on the solution of problems affecting Canadian home life, health, employment and economic security, and it will be related to the great task of building an enduring world order on spiritual foundations.

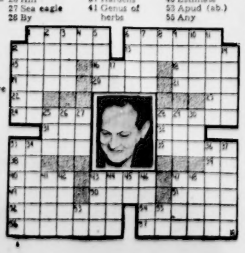

The local committees are under the chairmanship of the Rev. E. H. Birdsall, minister of Central United Church and chairman of presbytery. A colorful pageant is being prepared by the Rev. J. T. Stephens and preparations are being made for massed choirs in connection with the public meetings.

British Women Grouse Cheerfully at Shortages

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(CP Cable)—Cheerful peace celebrations are still going strong but the attitude of British housewives was well illustrated by a recent cartoon showing a weary woman saying the first anniversary of the war's end was not V-Day but would be V-ER-Day—very end of rationing day.

That day still appears to be far off. Queues are longer, not shorter than during the war.

Depressing to women weary of war work and ready to set up a home is the headlined estimate that Britain has a surplus of more than 2,000,000 women. On Sept. 26, 1939 the census showed 2,818,343 more women than men in the United Kingdom. The war has taken away nearly 300,000 men.

SOAP CONDITIONS

This week housewives were listlessly dored to lightened soap conditions. They protest in letters they can not get even vinegar, salt and soda in mass areas. They read that if lumber imports are not increased an acute shortage of household furniture is in prospect. Even with clean gasoline supplies flood available, women are afraid to drive from house due to the inability to obtain even minor repairs if car trouble develops.

STOCKINGS

Women say they look on nylon stockings, usually the only type available, as the last straw. They say they do not expect rations but protest concerning ankle dropped line-color range as described as "dusk battleship grey, to mud, fern, ginger or rotted dregs."

The only consolation is that all women have similar problems. The same manners-wife wage in a grocer shop with fallen books and found there were members of a clergyman's some distance away. Like others, she jumped on her bicycle and by pedalling hard reached the shop in time to get her half-pound.

Hair Fashions for Fall Are Still on the Upsweep

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (CP)—Hair fashions for fall are still on the upsweep with a multitude of styles that include braids, buns, twists and pouffs.

The vogue hit a peak during war time when war workers found it a neater proposition and less dangerous than the long bob.

Not that the modern miss hasn't retained her long bob—she has but it's lacked away neatly.

One of the most interesting things about the upsweep is that it can be done at home in case for times when it is impossible to reach a hairdresser.

Braids are more accomplished by parting the hair from the nape of the neck to the neckline, gathering all hair on each side and braiding. They cross the braids along the top of the head.

If your hair isn't long enough to braid you might try winding it around a hair fall band that is stretchable and washable. The band will keep the hair from slipping.

Before you try any hair style however, make sure your hair is washed thoroughly with one of the conditioning liquid shampoos and rinsed until thoroughly clean.

Builders Lead In Donations To Chest Drive

Organizers of the Community Chest drive have divided the citizens of the city into 14 divisions by industries, trades or professions, and according to the auditor's report as at 9 a.m. Wednesday, the construction workers and other personnel connected with the building trade had achieved 63 per cent of their objective.

They are being pressed for top position by the retail trade which is 62 per cent of the way along the trail to its goal.

The only other group seriously threatening the retailers and the builders were the doctors and dentists of the city who had subscribed 54 per cent of their objective.

ALL OTHERS TRAIL

All other divisions trailed the three leaders, their percentages running from nothing reported for the transportation workers to 29 per cent for the professional men other than doctors and dentists. However produce workers and public services employees had 27 and 28 per cent of their quotas respectively.

The $23,973 subscribed to date put the average for the entire city at 23.5 per cent with the campaign well into its second week. This figure does not include $7,000 pledged but not yet received for audit.

There is still more than $78,000 to be raised before the committee can call the job completed and canvassers are being readied for the final spurt, which will have to be vigorous and sustained if the ambitious objective is to be attained.

Among the public-spirited contributors listed on the roster Tuesday, the $2,000 contributed by C. Woodward, Ltd., is the most outstanding. This is augmented by a further $800 from Woodward employees.

Motor Car Supply boosted the percentage of the automotive division by a $300 donation.

$500 IS DONATED

Johnstone Walker Ltd., held up its end among the retail merchants with $500 worth of assistance to the Community Chest.

Northern Alberta Dairy Pool and staff and Woodland Dairy and staff each gave $400 to the cause.

Canada Packers, Ltd., with $750 and their employees, who gave a similar amount, boosted the total from this firm to an impressive $1,500 contribution.

Lumber Firms Await Outcome Of Test Case

A test case, the outcome of which will materially affect lumber companies operating timber berths under license from the province of Alberta, and companies in other provinces operating under similar licenses, opened Wednesday at the court house before Mr. Justice C. C. Cameron of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

The action arises out of the dismissal by the minister of national revenue of an appeal by the D. R. Fraser & Co., Ltd., against an income tax assessment of $14,129.46 under the Income War Tax Act on its 1941 operations. The company claims that it is entitled to a depletion allowance in respect to timber limits on which it carried out operations during 1941, and claimed an allowance for exhaustion of its timber limit of $1.40 per thousand feet on 8,374,000 board feet produced during the fiscal year 1941.

CLAIM ALLOWANCE

It is asserted by the company that under sub-section (A) of section five of the Income War Tax Act that the company has a statutory right and is entitled to an allowance for the exhaustion of its timber limits.

It was contended also that under this subsection the minister of national revenue has a duty of a quasi-judicial character to be exercised on proper legal principles to fix a just, fair and reasonable amount of an allowance to the company for the exhaustion of its timber limits.

This, it is contended by the company, the minister has neglected or refused to perform on the ground that the company is not entitled to an allowance under the subsection.

The company contended that the minister's decision in affirming the income tax assessment, and ruling that the appellant is not entitled to an allowance under the Income War Tax Act subsection for the exhaustion of its timber limits is manifestly against sound and fundamental principles.

The company is seeking the setting aside of the 1941 assessment of $14,129.46, and also that the matter be referred back to the minister to be dealt with upon proper principles and grounds.

S. Bruce Smith, KC, and Carlton W. Clement, KC, are acting for the company, and G. W. Auxier, Edmonton, and J. G. McEntyre, Ottawa, solicitors in the national revenue department, for the minister of national revenue.

Alberta Seeking Action on Radio

A demand for immediate action on the matter of a commercial broadcasting license for the Alberta government's radio station, CKUA, will be made in a letter to federal radio authorities by Hon. W. A. Fallow, provincial minister of public works.

Stating he was becoming impatient over the long delay in reaching a decision by the federal authorities, Mr. Fallow said he would seek an immediate "Yes! or No!" answer in his letter.

"Regardless of the answer we are definitely going to remain in the radio broadcasting business," he added.

Suites to Ease Acute Housing Shortage Here

Further slight easement in Edmonton's critical housing shortage is near as Maxwell C. Dewar, city architect, announced Wednesday that from eight to 12 suites being erected under the provincial-municipal housing plan will be ready for occupancy on Monday next, and that eight suites will be available each subsequent week until the project is completed.

The suites are being erected in the Ritchie district from lumber salvaged from huts and warehouses at Dawson Creek, B.C., and are being placed on sites in this district in the form of U-shaped courts.

RENTALS ARE FIXED

Recently the rental division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board fixed the maximum rentals on these suites on the following scale: One bedroom suite, $25; two bedrooms, $30; and three bedrooms, $35. These rates include all utilities except light and telephone.

As the first 125 suites completed under this project are being reserved for service personnel with families attending the University of Alberta, the allocation of the suites has been assigned to Lt.-Col. E. H. Strickland, supervisor of students' rehabilitation.

Rapid progress is being made also in converting huts and the hospital building at the Edmonton Exhibition grounds into suites, and it is expected some of these suites will be ready for occupancy in the very near future. This project is being carried out by national housing administration here. A total of 39 suites will be available here under this project.

South Africa Vets, Nationalists Clash

JOHANNESBURG, Sept. 19. — (CP)—One hundred persons were reported injured last night when Nationalist Party members, who opposed South Africa's participation in the war, attempted to break up a meeting of ex-servicemen. The veterans had met to demand that the government deal with South African Fascists as war criminals.

Russia Objects To British Plan

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Russia objected yesterday to a British proposal to admit all "peace-loving" countries to the United Nations Security organization.

The conflicting views were aired at a meeting of the executive committee of the United Nations preparatory commission as it worked on the agenda for the organizational meeting of the United Nations assembly, which may convene not later than Dec. 4.

The British minister of state, Philip Noel-Baker, sponsored a proposal to permit early admission into the security organization of "any peace loving state" desiring membership.

The Russian delegate, A. A. Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to the United States, opposed Mr. Noel-Baker, contending the League charter limited assembly consideration to countries approved at San Francisco.

Coast Butchers Planning Strike

NANAIMO, B.C., Sept. 19.—(CP)—Nanaimo butchers decided yesterday to follow Victoria's lead and will close their shops this Saturday unless the Federal government rescinds the present meat rationing system. Harold McVicker, president of the Nanaimo Butchers' Association, said a partial survey of customers showed that most of the public favors removal of rationing. Retail meat dealers in Victoria decided at a meeting Monday night to close their shops Sept. 22 unless the meat rationing order is rescinded.

In the era of Henry VIII the leather soles of shoes were made so wide at the toe that the imprint looked like the mark of a shovel.

Hospitals Must Increase Rates To Raise Wages

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 19.—(CP)—Canadian hospitals must increase their rates if they are faced with demands for salary increases, Dr. A. F. Anderson of Edmonton, acting president, told a meeting of the Canadian Hospital Council here today.

Dr. Anderson suggested that pensions of old-age pensioners domiciled in hospitals and such institutions should be doubled and made payable to the institutions charged with their care.

Consort Youth Still Missing

Allen Fraser, only son of William Fraser, Consort district farmer, who left home on the night of Sept. 8 was still missing Wednesday with no further word received regarding his whereabouts, RCMP at Edmonton revealed.

The youth's disappearance coincided with that of a .22 calibre rifle. A posse of 20 men, led by the Consort RCMP detachment, has combed the district with no results.

It is believed the youth may have left the district entirely. His family was absent from home at the time of his disappearance.

Egyptian Lawyers Ask Independence

CAIRO, Sept. 19. — (AP) — The Egyptian Lawyers Syndicate, comprising the country's leading practicing lawyers, asked today that the government immediately begin negotiations with Britain for "complete political and economic independence."

"This is the time to rescue our necks from slavery," the syndicate said in a note to King Farouk.

Minister Plans To Accompany U.S. Delegation

Pleased with results obtained by a U.S. delegation seeking to popularize the Inland Sunshine air route between North and South America to Alaska and the Orient by way of Edmonton, Hon. W. A. Fallow, Alberta minister of public works, plans to accompany the U.S. party from Edmonton to Lethbridge, probably on Thursday.

The party, headed by James Flaherty, Great Falls business and community leader, has been touring the Alaska Highway route and are expected back in Edmonton Wednesday.

WIN FIRST ROUND

"Against the most powerful kind of opposition from financially interested parties on the Pacific Coast the Sunshine Route sponsors seem to have won the first round of the battle," Mr. Fallow said.

The minister said he plans to accompany the U.S. party to Lethbridge, receive a report of their impressions following their tour and discuss the next tangible steps to be taken in popularizing the route.

"Once the peoples of North and South America learn that the Sunshine route is the shortest, quickest and most economical air route connecting Cape Horn to Fairbanks and the Orient they will see that it is made operative," Mr. Fallow added.

Resume Output Of Civilian Autos

OSHAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Preparations are under way at the General Motors plant here to resume production of civilian automobiles. The last army vehicle rolled off the assembly line this week, and the change-over to civilian output began immediately.

He has no legal status.

No dad who will pay his hospital bill.

No mother who will knit him woollies or buy him toys.

All he needs in the way of food, care and clothes must come from others. He is just one of this city's "unwanted" babies.

To give him and his many little fellow unfortunates the chance in life that they deserve takes a lot of time, work and money.

The essential local services dedicated to helping those who cannot help themselves, include excellent child-caring agencies, orphanages and foster homes. What would this city be without them? What will you give to help insure their adequacy?

War-born conditions have greatly increased the numbers to be cared for. To see that the job is done right is our mutual privilege and responsibility. Give because you care and keep your community strong.

Additional Grants For Student Vets Are Being Granted

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Supplementary grant of $5 a week to married veterans compelled to leave their homes to continue their education at a university was announced today by Veterans Minister Mackenzie.

"The supplementary payment has been in effect some time for veterans taking vocational training. The minister said that "in many cases" it would be impossible for the veteran to take his wife and family with him and thus would be forced to maintain two homes.

Plan Feed Banks To Aid Livestock

Feed banks or reserves for livestock are planned to meet the serious feed lack situation this winter in this province, it was announced Wednesday by O. S. Longman, deputy minister of agriculture.

On Tuesday Mr. Longman conferred with J. G. Davidson, Ottawa, dominion feed administrator at Calgary. Representatives of grain trade and officials of the Alberta department of agriculture attended the meeting.

Mr. Longman said the matter of providing feed grains was discussed and details are being worked out.

It is felt that supplies of feed will be available and farmers will be advised to acquire their needs as soon as possible so there will be no surpluses to ship out of the province.

"Green" Troops Sent to Fight At Hong Kong

REGINA, Sept. 18.—(CP)—Rfmn. George Soper of Toronto, one of a group of Canadian army personnel repatriated to Canada after being held prisoner by the Japanese following the fall of Hong Kong, Christmas day, 1941, said yesterday: "A lot of the fellows had never fired a rifle before they landed in Hong Kong."

Soper, interviewed at Union station here while the train carrying him east stopped briefly, said the British had stripped Hong Kong of everything," and added, "they spent money on the race track," which "we considered one of the finest in the world."

Rfmn. G. F. Aumont, Barrie, Ont., and Pte. H. Gyselman, Winnipeg, said that some of the Hong Kong force had had very little training, and that there were a "few raw recruits" among the Canadians sent to the garrison. They said, however, that the Canadians were so badly outnumbered by the Japanese that the stage of training they had reached mattered little.

ALL SUFFERED

Soper said everyone among the captured Canadian force, made up of the Royal Rifles of Canada and the Winnipeg Grenadiers, suffered from Japanese brutality and was "beaten up all the time".

He had been forced to work in coal yards at Yokohama until they were bombed out, and said that if a Japanese were killed or injured in a shipping accident his fellow Japs "gathered around and laughed". Only after the Canadians had attempted to help injured workers did the Japanese offer their countrymen assistance.

Of the Canadian force, Rfmn. R. D. Alley of Tregaron, Ont., and Pte. J. W. Campbell, Winnipeg, said it contained about 150 men from Camp Borden, Ont., who "knew something" as regards training.

Name Candidates Manitoba Ridings

WINNIPEG, Sept. 19. — (CP)— The Winnipeg Liberal Association last night nominated five candidates, including one woman, to contest the city's 10-member constituency in support of Premier Stuart Garson's coalition administration in the Oct. 15 provincial election.

Three of the candidates were members of the last legislature. They are Hon. J. S. McDiarmid, minister of mines and natural resources, C. Rhodes Smith and Paul Bardal. The new contestants are Alderman William Scraba and Mrs. Harry Walsh.

SWAN RIVER, Man., Sept. 19.—(CP)—The executive committee of Swan River constituency last night nominated George A. Renouf candidate in the forthcoming provincial election. A Conservative member of the last legislature, he will support the coalition administration.

Hospitals in U.S. Crowded by Insane

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP) —Surgeon-General Thomas Parran of the United States public health service, said yesterday that more than one-half of the hospital beds in the country are occupied by insane patients.

Wants Amendments For Constitution

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Parliament will be asked next session for us to amend our own constitution and should do it soon," Ralph Maybank, Liberal member for Winnipeg South Centre, said yesterday in the Commons.

Applying to the British parliament for changes in the constitution "are not only inconsistent with our status as a nation but they put an improper onus on Westminster," said Mr. Maybank.

Westminster was being used as a "chorebeard." It was unfair to ask the British parliament to make decisions on any constitutional or constitutional changes Canada might request.

Mr. Maybank said the power to change the constitution should be given the Dominion along with a distinctive flag, a national anthem and a governor-general.

"We should turn our attention to becoming masters of our own constitutional matters," he said. "The way to progress is to give our people complete control over basic legislation."

Meat Sales Show Big Drop in East

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—(CP)—The Globe and Mail said today in a newspage story that a survey showed a drop in sale of meat by Toronto packers to retailers during the first week of rationing ranged from 20 to 35 per cent. The paper said an official of a large packing firm commented: "Never in our history have we experienced such a severe drop in sales as we have during the last week."

Using Penicillin To Make "Ice Cream"

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 19—(AP)—Now its penicillin ice cream! The Navy Dept. medical training centre's sanitation and preventive medicine staff reports that mixing penicillin with ice cream makes possible its administration by mouth instead of through the usual hypodermic injections.

Asaki Suspended

Yanks "Crack Down" On Big Japan Daily

TOKYO, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Tokyo's big newspaper Asahi was suspended yesterday after it mocked United States orders to print atrocity stories by hinting they were designed to offset reports of American outrages in Japan.

Censors moved into the Tokyo offices of Asahi morning daily highly-regarded by Japanese intellectuals, only after the press persisted in publishing inflammatory stories. Along with the rest of the press, the newspaper yesterday condemned the "regrettable atrocities" committed by Japanese on helpless prisoners, and accused the military of starting the war.

But for three days previously General MacArthur's headquarters charged, it had been scoffing off the atrocity stories and accusing the United States itself of violating international law by unleashing the atomic bomb.

IS "COVER-UP" STORY

Asahi in one editorial said the atrocity report was put out to overshadow Japanese press reports of outrages "committed by some of the American soldiers in Japan."

Army authorities have never been able to substantiate such reports, and have styled them propaganda.

Man Is Charged With Murdering Baby at Coast

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19.—(CP) George R. Higgenson, 30, appeared in police court here yesterday for preliminary hearing on a charge of "unlawfully murdering" four-month old George Joseph Higgenson.

The child was found dead Aug. 28 in a room occupied by Mrs. Dorothy Rogers and family of Moose Jaw, Sask. Mrs. Rogers, who was absent from the downtown room Aug. 28, is the mother of the child.

Dr. S. A. Creighton, autopsist, said that in his belief, the child died an unnatural death resulting from concussion of the brain and spinal injuries, "which could have been the result of a fall."

ENTERED ROOM

Pat Parker, 12, who was looking after the baby the afternoon of Aug. 28, told the court that he had just changed the child's diapers when George Higgenson entered.

"Higgenson picked the baby up and called it several endearing names and took it out of the room," the boy testified. "Later Higgenson brought the baby back but later said it was hungry and took it out again."

The boy said that he heard "six or seven or eight bumps." "Higgenson appeared at the door and placed the baby lying on its back in my arms. It had a nightgown on and its red and white blanket.

DIDN'T LOOK SAME

"But the baby didn't look the same as when he took it away.

"I got scared—and I ran to Jenkins' room and told him something was wrong with the baby. The left side of its face was black and blue."

When Mrs. Rogers returned, Pat said, she ordered Higgenson from the room and police were called to the scene.

The hearing is continuing.

Couple Confess Theatre Hold-Up

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19.—(CP)— City police arrested and charged a young husband and wife with robbery with violence shortly after they had held up the cashier at a well-known theatre late last night and escaped with an unknown amount of money. The couple, who gave their names as Harold and Lillian Bray, both aged 19, told police they had come here from Toronto about a month ago and were in dire circumstances. When apprehended police found $65 in the husband's pockets.

Living Set-Up In Belsen Said "Mass Murder"

By DONALD CLARK
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
LUENEBURG, Germany, Sept. 19.—(CP)—An affidavit of a British medical officer introduced today at the trial of 45 Nazi bosses and guards of the infamous Belsen concentration camp said living conditions there added up to mass murder.

The court ordered the "mass murder" reference taken from the records, apparently on the grounds that it tended to pre-judge the case.

"It is impossible to describe adequately the atrocious, horrible and inhumane conditions," Lt-Col James A. Hamilton reported. He arrived at the camp April 17, soon after it was overrun by the British Second Army.

"HELLISH HOLE"

The trial of the German men and women went into its third day before a British military court in a converted gymnasium here. All the testimony so far had depicted Belsen as one of the most hellish holes of oppression in the Reich.

Brigadier H. L. Glyn Hughes, deputy medical chief of the British Army of the Rhine, completed testimony he began yesterday. He said starving inmates of Belsen called the terror of their Nazi guards, even after the British army arrived.

"Even after they were freed they were panic-stricken," Glyn Hughes testified.

He told how the victims of Belsen stood in abject fear when Fritz Klein, Nazi medical officer of the camp, told the British he had been there only two days. They waited until Klein left the hearing before they dared tell the British that Klein was lying.

"There were many doctors among the inmates, but the Germans made no effort to use them," Glyn Hughes told the military court.

Remove Controls On U.S. Building

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP) —The United States government yesterday ordered all limits off new construction, including house building. Until 31 days hours of the Office of Price Administration and other agencies of skyrocketing home prices, announced by Chairman John W. Snyder threw out the price ceiling on new dwellings along with other wartime curbs on civilian construction.

May Guillotine Axis Criminals

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(CP)— The Daily Express said today an American-built electrically-operated guillotine may be used to execute convicted European war criminals. The newspaper reported the device already had been used "in a number of executions, including several women, and added, "It is understood Gen. Eisenhower has already decided on the guillotine."

Members Call On Ministers To Give Jobs

By FRANK FLAHERTY
OTTAWA, Sept. 19. — (CP) — Remarks of two, front bench members of the Commons—Reconstruction Minister Howe and John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader—were under critical examination yesterday during continued debate on the Throne Speech.

John R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport) disagreed with Mr. Howe's optimistic view of the employment situation and Ralph Maybank (Liberal-Winnipeg South Centre) described Mr. Bracken's first speech in the Commons as noncommittal.

Mr. MacNicol, retired industrialist who speeded the intervals between sessions by parliament travelling and investigating opportunities for economic development, said that there was not jobs for every job-seeker in Canada.

ADDRESS BY MINISTER

He was referring to Mr. Howe's speech Monday night in which the minister gave figures of vacant jobs listed at the labor department and unemployed persons available for jobs.

Mr. MacNicol said an unemployed man had told him the figures should be the other way around—two job-seekers for every job.

Mr. Maybank, who sat in the Manitoba legislature from 1922-35 as a supporter of Mr. Bracken, then premier of the province, said he was sorry to see Mr. Bracken in his present plight."

The new opposition leader, said Mr. Maybank, seldom took a stand one way or the other on the Commons speech, opening the throne speech debate. He was in favor of increased old age pensions but was everyone else, no one less than Finance Minister Ilsley.

AGAINST "CHISELING"

Mr. Bracken had said the people would stand for no "chiseling" on promises to returning servicemen. Everyone would agree with that but there was no evidence of chiseling and veterans of the First Great War would not forget that Mr. Bracken was not in parliament but was one to "a little chiseling" on them. He had taken away a tax emption accorded veterans by a preceding government.

Mr. Maybank said he favored most returning opposed last night by L. O. Breithaupt (L-Waterloo North).

At the night sitting Finance Minister Ilsley announced that Wednesday's meeting between Prices Board officials and representatives of the labor movement on wage rationing will be closed to the public and press.

Speaking in the Throne speech debate included W. F. Kuhl (SC-Jasper-Edson), L. Menard (PC-Wellington South), Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), Rev. Dan McIvor (L-Fort William), Victor Quelch (CCF-Acadia), and H. C. Green (PC-Middlesex East).

Making his maiden speech, E. B. McKay (CCF-Weyburn) urged the establishment of guaranty prices for farm products. He said his party would support the establishment of a national labor-agriculture organization and all possible steps for the removal of barriers to trade since the prosperity of the Canadian west was dependent on external markets.

"That is not possible in my opinion," said Mr. MacNicol, referring to Mr. Howe's employment summary. "I don't say that the minister made a misstatement—he is just over enthusiastic.

"There is not quantity of jobs going."

Mr. Howe also had stated that industrial expansion in 1946 was expected to be comparable with expansion in the war years.

EXPANSION IMPOSSIBLE

"It was a big industry in the last war and after the last war and that is just not possible," said Mr. MacNicol.

The reconstruction minister was in the habit of making "all embracing" statements, he complained.

A labor delegation had come to Ottawa a short while ago because jobs were scarce, he declared. The delegation had expressed anxiety that there be more and more layoffs.

The organization of Germany and particularly since the capitulation of Japan there were layoffs of from a few to thousands of men in war factories.

The picture as he knew it was not the same as painted by Mr. Howe. He hoped the minister would change his view and get down to the task of providing jobs.

Plan Discussion of Bricklayers' Strike

Striking bricklayers and the building contractors who employ them will tell their stories to the Regional War Labor Board at a meeting to be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the board offices here.

The bricklayers strike has entered its third week and has effected Edmonton's housing problem, particularly in those sections where wartime houses are being built, as projects of the National Housing Act.

The workers demand a clause in their employment contracts by which they will be paid for time lost in bridging while working on jobs more than ten miles from Edmonton.

Not Guilty

John B Romaniuk, Edmonton, was found not guilty in supreme court Wednesday by Mr. Justice Clinton J. Ford on a charge of obtaining by false pretences fish to the value of $25 from T. B. Leir, Ltd., a Biche fish dealer. Romaniuk was defended by W. G. K. Bloor, Edmonton barrister.

Composite Plan Is Studied by School Board

A meeting of the public school board Tuesday approved in principle a recommendation by R. S. Sheppard, superintendent of schools, that arrangements be made so that operations can be commenced on a composite high school site, as soon as possible, and that every effort be made to have at least an academic wing and some technical accommodation available for the opening of school in September, 1946.

In the intermediate and elementary sections, chief congestion was at H. A. Gray and Sherbrooke schools but when the new school in Delton was erected pupils in the H. A. Gray district would have suitable accommodation, said Mr. Sheppard's report, adding some pupils from Sherbrooke might have to be transferred to Westmount. There was prospect of obtaining use of a building at Camp 30 which could be converted into a classroom to relieve the overcrowding at Sherbrooke.

CLUB APPLICATION

Application by the South Edmonton Teens Club for the use of Garneau school gymnasium was approved with the proviso that the club advance its meeting date from Saturday to Friday, but failing this they would be expected to share in any extra expense incurred by caretaking.

A similar application for the use of Westglen and Westmount school gymnasia made by the Mountglen Community YMCA was approved.

Finance committee approved renewal of public liability insurance policy, and retirement allowance for one staff member.

Maintenance department reported a net balance to date of $43,834.67 remaining from the $71,376.58 annual appropriation for this purpose. In this expenditure of $27,481.96 decorating of schools totalled the largest amount with classroom equipment second, and the maintenance of grounds and equipment third.

WANT FLOORS RENEWED

A request is being forwarded to the department of public works urging immediate action in renewing floors in Garneau school. The request added that failing this action the school maintenance department would of necessity undertake the work. Cost of this repair would be billed to the department of public works.

City Squadron's Record Reviewed

That the City of Edmonton Mosquito Squadron was an extremely busy organization can be determined from the final figures of its operations just received. During the life of the squadron as an intruder unit, from April 26, 1942, until November 1944, the members accomplished the following: Destroyed 105 enemy aircraft in the air, 73 on the ground, and are credited with nine as probably destroyed. They damaged 21 in the air, 72 on the ground and destroyed 79½ robot bombs.

On March 14, 1945, just about a year after the adoption by Edmonton the squadron was a member of the Second Tactical Air Force. During the period March 14 to V-E Day the squadron flew 4471.35 hours, completed 790 sorties and had the following score:

Destroyed 182 mechanical transports, damaged 110 and strikes were seen on 221. They destroyed one train damaged 14 and strikes were seen on 27. Six locomotives were destroyed, seven were damaged and strikes were seen on seven. They destroyed 12 goods wagons, five were damaged and strikes were seen on 11.

Enemy buildings also came in for their share of attention. The squadron damaged eight and strikes were seen on seven additional factories. Two railway stations were damaged, and one enemy barrack block was also damaged.

The squadron damaged one enemy barge and strikes were seen on 10 others and five enemy boats were attacked and strikes seen by the hard working members of the former intruder squadron.

Highlands Route Nearly Completed

An eight-minute service will be in operation on the Highlands trolley bus route during peak hours, Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent stated Tuesday. He intimated that the route would be completed early next week if favorable weather prevails.

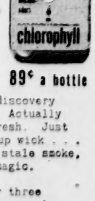

During off-peak traffic hours, a 13-minute service will be maintained. All eight buses ordered for the route have arrived and are being "broken-in" on the 95 street route. Five of the buses will be used to operate the normal off-peak service, and additional buses will be placed in service to meet the peak loads.

The first trolley bus, when the new service is inaugurated, will leave the Highlands terminal at 6:12 a.m. The peak-load service will be in operation between 7 and 9 a.m. and 4 and 6:30 p.m. The usual 30-minute service will be in operation also, Mr. Ferrier stated.

He said that wet weather had retarded the stringing of overhead wiring, and also that the installation of intricate connections at intersections was causing some delay.

Paving on the route was completed last week and is now recognized as one of the finest of Edmonton's streets. Traffic lights likely will be installed at 109 street and Jasper avenue when the buses start operation.
